STRANGE DOINGS AT FOUR COURTS.

Chicago Detective Arrested on a Trivial Charge.

DEPUTY SHERIFFS VS. POLICE.

SECRET ISSUANCE OF WARRANT CHARGING LIBEL.

Member of the House of Delegates Figures in the Matter in a Strange Way—Judge Clark Quashes the Case.

The arrest of Frank Stible, a duly accredited representative of the Chicago Police Department, in the office of Chief of Police Campbell at the Four Courts Tuesday evening, by two St. Louis deputy sheriffs, created more talk than any arrest of recent months. Police and court officials declare they never saw so high handed a proceeding.

The warrant on which Detective Stible was arrested was withdrawn Wednesday morning as soon as the Court of Criminal Correction was opened and Judge Clark said the arrest of the officer was not warranted.

Stible was charged with criminal libel. The information on which the warrant was based was sworn to by James J. Shea. Shea was arrested in the Chemical Building a week ago by St. Louis detectives. The Chief of Police in Chicago had wired the St. Louis authorities to arrest Shea, saying he was under indictment there.

After Shea was locked up here his attorney instituted a habeas corpus proceedings. The police here applied for and received a warrant, charging Shea with being a fugitive from justice. The habeas corpus proceedings were then dropped.

Detective Stible, armed with a copy of the indictment against Shea, and with a requisition signed by Gov. Tanner of Illinois, came to St. Louis.

The indictment against Shea was returned at the September term of the Chicago Grand Jury, and he is charged with having obtained $700 from Otto Odmanson on a confidence game. Detective Stible went to Jefferson City, where Gov. Stephens honored his requisition. Stible then returned to St. Louis to take charge of his prisoner. Shea has been released on bond to appear in the Court of Criminal Correction Wednesday and answer to the charge of fugitive from justice. All that was left for Stible to do was to wait for the case to be called.

Tuesday evening Detective Stible was sitting in a chair in the office of Chief of Police Campbell when Deputy Sheriffs Priesmeyer and Wasser entered. One of the deputies tapped the detective on the shoulder and said he had a warrant for his arrest. The detective laughed. So did the other police officials. They thought it was a joke. When they learned otherwise the information was read to him. It charged criminal libel. A morning newspaper had printed an article concerning Shea's arrest, in which the detective had been interviewed, and in which he had said some things that reflected on Mr. Shea's integrity.

Chief of Detectives Desmond, when he saw that the warrant was genuine, offered to take the warrant and serve it. The deputies would not release their prisoner. Desmond asked the Sheriff's representatives to leave Stible in their custody. No, their orders were to put Stible in jail, they said. Desmond offered to furnish bond. It was flatly refused. The deputies said criminal libel was a felony and they could accept no bond. Chief Desmond pleaded with the deputies to leave Stible out of jail. He said that the detective was here representing the State of Illinois, and he had been accepted by the Governor of Missouri. It was a most discourteous proceeding to lock up an officer of the law on the statement of a man under indictment, he said.

The deputies were inexorable. They said they had orders to lock Stible up nothing else would do. Desmond wanted to reach Sheriff Fohlman or his chief deputy. Neither could be found. Repeatedly Priesmeyer laid his hands on Stible and said he would have to go to jail.

Finally Desmond heard that the chief deputy was in the corridor. He rushed out and found him. The chief deputy would not interfere. While they were conversing Edward A. Albright appeared on the scene. "Eddie" Albright is a member of the House of Delegates. He watched things as though he had a personal interest in the outcome. Finally he blurted out in a loud and angry tone:

"Lock him up. Why should you show him any favors? He is as bad as Shea ever was and worse."

No one paid any attention to "Eddie" Albright's speech. Chief Desmond said, however, that it was significant.

Finally Deputy Sheriff Henry Wichmann appeared. He investigated the matter and at once said bond could be taken. A bondsman was in waiting and the detective was released.

"There is something more than passing strange about this whole affair," said Chief Desmond. "This warrant was drawn by Mr. Braden in the office of Shea's lawyer Monday evening. It was sworn to and placed in the Sheriff's hands at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Stible was in our office all morning. He left at 1 o'clock for lunch and was back again in the middle of the afternoon. It seemed that there was a plan to get Stible in jail and that was all that would satisfy."

Judge Clark said the warrant was not justified. He said the charge of criminal libel could not be proven until the case against Shea, in Chicago, for which he was now under indictment, had been disposed of. He said that the issuance of the warrant interfered with duly accredited officers of the law in the performance of their duty. The case was nolle prossed.

Shea was not in court at 10 o'clock to answer the charge of fugitive from justice. On request of his attorney the case was passed down until 1 o'clock. Prosecuting Attorney Clover said that Shea's lawyer told him that the defendant had gone to Chicago to give himself up. The St. Louis detectives and Detective Stible say they believe that Shea is still here.

THE TOBACCO TRUST BEATEN

James H. Williams, a St. Louis Traveling Man, Awarded $800 for Breach of Contract.

If the Circuit Court of St. Joseph, Mo., Tuesday James H. Williams, a St. Louis traveling man, was awarded judgment for $800 against the Continental Tobacco Co., the trust, for breach of contract.

Williams was for years employed by the Drummond Tobacco Co. of St. Louis, and when it entered the trust the same salary contract was renewed.

Williams says the trust is continually discharging traveling men in order to reduce expenses, and that it was this reason that caused his own discharge.

The trust set up as a defense insubordina-

ASPHYXIATED IN HIS HOME.

Thomas E. Phelan Died From Escaping Gas.

WAS FOUND BY HIS DAUGHTER.

HE WAS FOR YEARS A PROMINENT CONTRACTOR.

Brother of Rev. Father Phelan of the Western Watchman—He Is the Third Brother to Die Thus Unexpectedly.

Thomas E. Phelan, a prominent contractor and a brother of Rev. David S. Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman and pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, was asphyxiated by gas in his bed room at his home, 3335 Chestnut street, Wednesday morning.

When the body was found it was still warm and was fully clothed. It was stretched upon the bed in an easy position and a pipe was held in the mouth in a tight grasp. The family say these circumstances confirm their theory of accident.

The dead man's daughter, Miss Genevieve, discovered the body. She arose at her usual hour and was making her toilet when she detected the odor of gas. She began a search to locate it. As she approached her father's room the odor became stronger. A knock at his door was not responded to. He was called several times, but there was no answer. Miss Phelan then turned the knob of the door and entered.

Her father lay as though asleep. His head was resting upon his right arm. The room was filled with gas and a glance told her that her father was under its influence.

She called her mother, who was in an adjoining room, and they opened every window and door in the house to allow the gas to escape. A friend was summoned and he called Dr. A. C. Robinson of 3402 Pine street.

Dr. Robinson found the body warm and applied some restoratives, although he declared there was no hope, as death had occurred several minutes before. After a few vain efforts at reviving, he made arrangements to notify Coroner Lloyd. An examination of the six gas jets in the room showed that only one of them was flowing.

Mrs. Phelan says her husband arose about 4 o'clock in the morning and went to the kitchen and took a light lunch, as was his custom. He then returned to his room and lay down again to wait for breakfast, she says. She thinks he negligently turned on one of the jets when he lighted his pipe, thinking he would light the gas, too.

"He had a habit of doing that," she said. "I have long been expecting something like this to happen and no longer ago than yesterday I informed some friends that I would not be suprised if Mr. Phelan should not some day asphyxiate himself in this way.

"He always wanted to save a match when he could and this desire led him to turn on a gas jet, if one was in reach, when he lighted a match. It was a second nature with him. Half the time he didn't light the jet and my daughters and I always watched him when we saw him with a match in his hand that we might shut any jets that he left open. The fact that he was fully clothed and held his pipe in his mouth when he died confirms our belief that death was an accident brought about by this negligent habit.

"I have no doubt he went to his room after eating lunch and, feeling that he needed a short rest, he lighted his pipe and lay down. I am convinced that, as he ignited the match, the old habit asserted itself and he turned on the jet and neglected to apply the light.

"Suicide? Impossible! He was in good health and his affairs were in fine condition. He was cheerful when he retired for the evening and there was no reason why he should be unhappy in anything."

Father Phelan, the dead man's brother, was at the house a few minutes after the body was discovered.

"Thomas was one of the most cheerful and happy men I ever knew," he said. "He had no financial entanglements or worries and was prospering. There was no reason for him to take his own life and I know he died by accident, although it came about through a negligent habit.

"He is the third of my brothers to die suddenly. Alexander died of cholera and was the picture of health three hours before I saw him a corpse. Michael was stricken with heart disease, while walking along the street, laughing with friends. And now Thomas, cheerful and happy, is taken from us just as unexpectedly.

"My brother was born in Sydney, Cape Breton, in 1843, and he and I came to this country together. He leaves a widow and a daughter. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from St. Xavier's Church to Calvary Cemetery."

COOL AND FAIR WEATHER.

Forecaster Hyatt Is Good to the Thousands of Visitors.

The Weather Manufacturing Bureau of Hyatt & Co., at the Federal Building, opened rather late Wednesday morning. The doctor was at the ball Tuesday night, and he declares it was the finest affair he ever saw.

Ideal weather he had provided for the guests of his majesty, the Prophet, and his right arm is now almost as tired as Dewey's. Everyone congratulated the weather wizard on the excellency of his meteorological pattern and his programme was filled ere he knew it.

The Fall Festivities are Dr. Hyatt's long suit—although he likes full dress—so he has ordered a continuance of sunshine and cooling winds.

"It may get a little cloudy," he says, Wednesday night, but no matter—there won't be any occasion for our country cousins to come in out of the rain."

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

Through the New York World and St. Louis Post-Dispatch He Is Asked to Offer Mediation to Prevent Threatened War in the Transvaal.

THE PETITION AND ITS MANY SIGNERS.

Wm. McKinley, President of the United States:

The undersigned representatives of American public and private life most respectfully petition you to offer the friendly services of the United States in mediation between Great Britain and the Republics of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

Articles 1, 2 and 3 of the plan adopted by the Peace Congress make such offers the right of any friendly power "even during the course of hostilities."

We respectfully submit that it is not only the right and duty of this nation, but also its high privilege, to strive to prevent the wiping out of two of our sister Republics, the desolation of thousands of English and South African homes, the slaughter of thousands of civilized men and the drenching of South Africa with blood and tears.

The World and Post-Dispatch Washington Bureau sent by telegraph the above petition to hundreds of conspicuous American citizens with a request for permission to attach their names as signers.

The response by telegraph was immediate, hearty and unanimous. There is no doubt where the best sentiment of this republic stands. The petition, signed with all the names received to date, has been presented to President McKinley at the White House. Names to be signed hereafter will be added daily.

The Post-Dispatch herewith prints some of the notable responses received and the names of all those who have signed the petition up to the hour of going to press to-day:

RESPONSES FROM DISTINGUISHED MEN.

ARCHBISHOP KAIN.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—I approve suggestion that the United States offer to mediate in Transvaal difficulty. You may affix my signature to petition to President.
JOHN J. KAIN,
Archbishop of St. Louis.

GEO. F. EDMUNDS.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Have yours. Willing to join any number of citizens in the request, but the evident purpose of the British Government is to destroy the independence of those States and to make them mere dependencies, unjust and destructive of the right of separate people to govern themselves, as the affair is.
GEO. F. EDMUNDS.

BISHOP RYAN.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
ALTON, Ill., Oct. 4.—An administration inflicting the horrors of war upon the Philippines in the face of the Constitution and its own basic principles cannot with grace or truth intervene for the Transvaal.
JAMES RYAN,
Bishop of Alton.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—You may add my name.
JOHN IRELAND,
Archbishop of St. Paul.

J. STERLING MORTON.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 4.—Yes, you can always use my name in the interests of honorable peace.
J. STERLING MORTON,
Ex-Secretary of Agriculture.

JOHN W. BREIDENTHAL.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 4.—I cheerfully grant permission to sign my name to petition to President McKinley, and sincerely hope that same may result in preventing bloodshed and the horrors of war in South Africa. JOHN W. BREIDENTHAL, Member National Committee People's Party.

THOMAS LOWRY.
To the World and Post-Dispatch.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 4.—You may add my name to the petition referred to in your dispatch. THOMAS LOWRY.
President Soo Line.

FATAL INJURY TO A WORKMAN

Joseph Fleiter Struck on the Head While Delivering Fruit Near Third and Carr Streets.

Joseph Fleiter was seriously—perhaps fatally—injured by an unidentified man in a mystifying manner at Third and Carr streets early Wednesday morning. So far as the police have ascertained there was no provocation for the assault.

Fleiter is 30 years old, married and lives at 1114 North Sixth street. He is employed in the commission store of Kralimann & Hoeffner, 1115 North Third street.

About 7:30 o'clock Wednesday two hucksters brought a barrel of apples at the store and Fleiter delivered the apples at Third and Carr streets, where he was to pour the apples into the wagon and return with the empty barrel.

While he was at his work the unidentified man crept up on him and dealt him a blow on the head with some blunt instrument. As Fleiter fell to the ground, unconscious, the man who dealt the blow fled and escaped. Fleiter was taken to the City Dispensary, where the doctor said he was suffering from concussion of the brain. He was sent to his home.

With a parting good bye to my friends, I will close with a request th brother Odd Fellows bury me by the rites of that sacred fraternity.

Good bye to all, and especially to my home folks, for I expect I shall go and as it makes two lives unhappy, I will end this world of misery for us

CHARLES RANK

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

MONTGOMERY, Mo., Oct. 4.—Charles Rankin, a farmer, 27 years old, murdered Frank Walker and the wife he married a few hours before, seriously wounded a child and committed suicide at the home of James Cook, nine miles east of here, at dusk of Tuesday. Rankin was a jealous lover of the bride, who was Miss Maud Goshorne. The victims and the murderer were prominent residents of Montgomery County. Rankin left a note, explaining his deed, which follows:

"FRIENDS—You may think me strange and it is all my fault that this happened to-night. 'Tis my own unworthiness that this rash act has been done by me with fatal results. With a parting good bye to my friends, I will close with a request that my brother Odd Fellows bury me by the rites of that sacred fraternity. Good bye to all, and especially my home folks, for I expect I shall go to hell; and as it makes two lives unhappy, I will end this world of misery for us both

"CHARLES RANKIN."

The bride and groom were shot as they sat at the wedding feast, and died in each other's arms.

The murderer fired through a window. A shotgun was his weapon. None saw him, and his identity was unknown until his dead body was stumbled over outside of the house, with the farewell letter clasped in one hand and the gun by his side.

Walker, the Goshornes and James Cooke lived in the same part of the country. Walker had no relatives in the vicinity and worked a rented farm. Walker and Miss Goshorne drove to Montgomery Tuesday afternoon and were married. They then drove to the Cook home, where a supper was prepared.

A company of well-wishers was gathered and the fiddler was present for the dancing. The supper began and progressed amid joy and laughter. The couple were well mated and all present predicted a happy future. Following a pretty custom, all the company left the dining room when supper was over, leaving the bride and groom to themselves for a brief period before the dance should begin.

They sat side by side at the head of the table. There was an uncurtained window behind them.

A curious child, member of the C fly, slipped in at the door to see w ried folks were doing. The other of the family and the visitors w other part of the house.

There was a mingled din o gunshot reports and crashing child ran, terror-stricken with bl into the room where were th women, who rushed from other house towards the dining roon

REUNITED AT UNION STATION

Little Bessie Trout, Brought from Shawnee, Kan., Failed to Recognize Her Parents.

A pitiful scene was enacted at Union Station Wednesday morning. The chief characters were a little girl and her parents whom she failed to recognize.

Bessie Trout, a pretty child of 4 years, was taken to the station by her uncle from Shawnee, Kan., to meet her parents, whom she had not seen for two years. The father and mother did not at once appear, and Ben Brown, the train caller, was asked to call out the name of Mr. and Mrs. Trout. The parents responded and called their child by name.

Bessie did not recognize them and clung to her uncle, pleading with him not to let "the bad people" take her away. For a long time reasoning was of no avail, the child insisting that they were not her parents. Finally the mother and father made the child a number of solemn promises that if she were not pleased with them she could go back to her uncle. She was then pursuaded to go with them.

Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Trout, while on a visit to this uncle, left the child there for a visit. Later, they could find no way to get the child home and so she stayed there all this time.

GETTING SLUSH FUNDS FOR OHIO.

Appeal Sent Federal Officers All Over the Land.

ELECTION MOST IMPORTANT.

ITS RESULT HAS A BEARING ON THAT OF 1900.

The Request for Money Is Signed by W. F. Burdell, Treasurer of the Republican State Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—An appeal for campaign funds signed with the name of W. F Burdell, treasurer of the Republican State Committee, has been made to every postmaster in the State and every other Federal officer throughout the United States, whose appointment can in any way be credited to Ohio.

Its preface is intended to properly alarm the office-holders by pointing out that Democratic success in Ohio now would enable the Democrats to strongly intrench themselves here for the campaign of 1900. A Democratic legislature would be called into extra session to re-district the State for Congress, and thus the Republican Representation in Congress be materially reduced.

An extract from the civil service law is enclosed, bearing upon political contribution, and the office-holders assured that they violate no provision of the law in making "voluntary contributions, providing they make them to no Federal officer." The letter closes with an expression of hope that it will elicit a large number of these voluntary contributions.

RECEIVED THE APPEAL.

At Many Points Federal Office-Holders Are Served With the Notice.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Oct. 4.—Several Federal office holders here have received the circular of the Ohio Campaign Committee calling for contributions to the election funds for the campaign in that State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 4.—Some holders of Federal offices here received to-day letters signed W. F. Burdell in regard to the Ohio campaign fund. Officeholders here do not regard the matter favorably.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 4.—So far it cannot be shown that any Federal officeholders or postmasters have received the appeal from the Ohio Republicans for the campaign funds in this State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 4.—The appeal of the Ohio Republicans for campaign funds has not been circulated in Nebraska. Postmasters and Republicans generally declare that Ohio should contribute to Nebraska's campaign fund, rather than that the order should be reversed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—No appeal has been made so far to the Federal officers in this State for the Ohio campaign fund.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—All the postmasters and Federal officeholders in Missouri were appointed through the recommendations of Hanna and Kerens. It is said to-day that they have not received the appeal of the Ohio State Committee, but nearly all of them are in a position to make some contribution, and none of them would be likely to make the fact public.

SHOT AT HIS DESK.

Railroad Official the Victim of a Former Lieutenant-Governor.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 4.—Capt. J. F. Mills, former Lieutenant Governor of Idaho and late of a United States volunteer engineer regiment, yesterday shot and killed John C. O'Melveney, Chief of Construction of the Oregon Short Line Railroad, while he was seated at his desk. Mills blamed O'Melveney for having prevented him from securing employment. After the shooting he went to the office of the General Traffic Manager, nonchalantly giving information of the deed, and then awaited the officers.

BALL TRUSTS THE PEOPLE.

He Says That Men Opposed to Primary Nominations Do Not.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 4.—In a letter published here Lavid A. Ball, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, says of the proposition for primary nominations: "The greatest reason for holding a primary election in the State is that it is the only mode to bust up all gangs and rings, and busting up all machinery that may or has heretofore existed. Any man who is afraid of a primary election is afraid of the people, and the people should be afraid of him."

REWARD FOR BANK ROBBERS.

Five Hundred Dollars Will Be Paid for Capture of Houstonia Thieves.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 4.—The directors of the Bank of Houstonia, which was robbed of $900 last Saturday, to-day offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers and an additional $5.0 for the return of the money.

SINGS "SNAP SHOT SAL" AT THE COLUMBIA THEATER.

JOSEPHINE NEWMAN.

On the stage of the Columbia Theatre, twice every day this week, a dainty little lady, whose pretty face is encircled by an absolute bower of glorious hair, of the very much envied Titian hue, is singing "Snay Shot Sal," 116,417 copies of which were presented to the readers of the Post-Dispatch, free, gratis and for nothing with its last Sunday's issue. The song as sung by Miss Newman, has scored a hit and brought her more prominently forward in her chosen profession.

This clever little woman was seen here last season with Ward and Vokes. Prior to her engagement with "Percy" and "Harold," she played the part of Virginia in Hoyt's "A Stranger in New York," and was understudy there for Anna Boyd.

In common with the majority of what are called "legitimate" artists who shake the dust of dramatic companies off their shoes, Miss Newman says that she much prefers vaudeville to being a unit in a combination. She says there is more money in it; that she is very much more her own manager. Her two turns take up, in all, the brief space of 32 minutes, and adding to that an hour and a half a day, the time occupied by her in "making up" she has the remainder of the 24 hours to herself. She expressed herself highly complimented at being selected to sing the Post-Dispatch song, and she has certainly done justice to it.

Miss Newman is a St. Louis girl, and it is only fitting that the first number of the Post-Dispatch's series of songs, which will be published weekly, should be voiced to the public by a St. Louis artist.

STORY OF A CRAPS GAME.

Judge Willis Clark of the "Three Cs" Was Present.

ADMITS THAT HE SHOOK DICE.

SAYS THAT HE ONLY DID IT AS AN EXPERIMENT.

A Sergeant of the Reform Police Department, It Is Said, Participated in the Game at Cronin's.

A number of craps games were raided in various parts of St. Louis last Saturday afternoon and evening. The fact was chronicled by the newspapers at the time.

A Four Courts story was to the effect that Judge Willis Clark of the Court of Criminal Correction was present at one of the games. Persons interested in this game say the raids were made because the Judge lost money. The Judge denies this.

The name of Sergeant Dowdall of the Tenth Police District was also prominently mentioned as one of the winners of the money.

The others spoken of as having either sat in the game or been present at it were Attorney John A. Gernez, Attorney Calvin N. Miller and Chris Schawacker. The game is said to have been played in a private room adjoining Cronin's saloon on Twelfth street, near the Four Courts.

Judge Clark acknowledges that he was in the saloon at the time stated, and with the persons mentioned, and that he shook dice there, but he says he did not lose any money.

Judge Clark was asked about the stories Wednesday morning. To a Post-Dispatch man he said:

"I can't see how such a rumor got in circulation. I have heard all kinds of stories this morning. One of them was that I had been beaten out of a lot of money by a police sergeant. Now, I'll tell you just what happened:

"I was passing along Twelfth street Saturday afternoon when a messenger overtook me and asked me to step into a saloon and wait there for an attorney who wanted me to sign a bond. I went in. Mr. Gernez and Mr. Miller and Sergt. Dowdall were seated at a table. They had a dice box and were apparently shaking for the drinks. They asked me to sit down, but I did not. I stood there and watched them for awhile and bought a drink for the party. Then somebody took a couple of dice from the box and began to play some other kind of a game. I asked them what it was, and they said they were playing craps. I was much interested, and asked them to show me how it was played. I wanted to know because I frequently have cases here in which prisoners are charged with playing craps. I shook the box several times to see what the game was like."

"Did you lose $135?" was asked.

"No," said Judge Clark. "I did not lose 135 cents."

"Did you lose any money?"

"I did not."

"Did anyone in the game win anything from you?"

"They did not."

"Do you know that crooked dice were used in the game?"

"I do not, but I have heard so."

Chris Schawacker said: "I drove over to the saloon with Judge Clark to meet a bondsman. We had some drinks, and then went back into the proprietor's private room. The Judge wanted to look over some papers to see whether the bondsman was good. We were in there about an hour. Mr. Gernez and the sergeant and others were playing dice, and the judge asked what the game of craps was like. They showed him; that's all."

Mr. Schawacker added:

"The Judge threw the dice several times to see what the game was like. That story about his losing $135 is all bosh. I did not take any part in the game. I was simply waiting to take the Judge downtown in my rig."

At another point in this interview Chris Schawacker said: "They were playing for money. When Judge Clark and I first went in they were playing high dice for a quarter a corner, later for half a dollar and finally for a dollar. As I said, I did not enter the game. When the Judge asked for information the game was switched to craps."

All of those mentioned as having participated in the game are Republicans. The proprietor of the saloon where the game is alleged to have taken place is a prominent Democratic politician.

Within a short time after Judge Clark left the saloon craps games were being raided all over town.

BOUGHT A FINE HOUSE

MR. JAMES HOPKINS PAID $42,500 FOR A HOME.

AT FOREST PARK TERRACE.

Three Sales in Two Weeks in That Sections of the City Aggregate $105,500—The List Growing.

The Anderson-Wade Realty Co. have made another sale in Forest Park Terrace, the second within a week. They had listed for sale the property 100x190 feet, on the northwest corner of that street and Lake avenue, with the elegant renaissance dwelling, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Dwyer. Last Saturday Mr. L. E. Anderson met on the street Mr. James Hopkins, manager of the Diamond Match Co., and proposed to sell him the Dwyer property for $42,500. Mr. Hopkins looked at it Sunday, and Monday he closed the deal.

The house is one of the most desirable ever erected in St. Louis. It is built of artistic brick and Carthage stone, beautifully finished inside and out, and furnished with every convenience that modern building ingenuity can suggest. It was designed by John R. Dwyer, son of the owner and of the late John Dwyer, once well known in the real estate business in St. Louis. The son is a graduate of the Boston School of Architecture, and has exhibited his talents well in this handsome dwelling. Mr. Hopkins will occupy it.

As the Anderson-Wade Realty Co. sold last week for $46,000 the residence of Col. Hughes in Forest Park Terrace, this makes their sales in this thoroughfare $87,500. And the sale the week before by Mr. E. H. Benoist of 100 feet in the same square for $18,000 makes the total sales in that neighborhood $105,500 in two weeks, and indicates a rapid demand for residences in that section.

The Anderson-Wade Realty Co. say they have an unusually good demand for fine residences, and that they now have on hand instructions from three or four capitalists to buy this kind of property of the highest grade.

OVATION TO SCHLEY.

The People Again Acclaim the Hero of Santiago.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—One of the striking features of the Dewey parade here was the genuine ovation given to Rear-Admiral Schley.

The parade was the finest military display seen at the Capital since the Civil War. When the last of the troops had passed the distinguished party on the stand began preparations for leaving. The President's carriage was first driven up, and the President and Admiral Dewey descended the steps leading down into the plaza. There was great cheering as the Admiral and the President drove away. They were followed by Dewey's Captains, who were likewise accorded a splendid reception.

Suddenly there was a mighty roar from the multitude, and thousands of throats yelled "Schley! Schley!" Admiral Schley had appeared upon the raised platform. As he descended the steps to take his carriage the crowd surged up and yelled like mad. He drove away in a perfect whirlwind of applause. Admiral Sampson did not come down the steps in front of the Capitol. He went back through the Capitol and entered his carriage from the door of the Senate wing. The ovation to Schley continued all the way up Pennsylvania avenue. At Fourteenth street the crowd stopped his carriage and individuals made frantic efforts to shake his hand.

WAGON WHEELS RAN OVER HIM

Henry Trall Thrown from His Own Vehicle, Receiving Injuries Which May Be Fatal.

Henry Trall, aged 19 years, is in the Mullanphy Hospital with injuries that may prove fatal. The young man drives a brick wagon, and his home is at 3500 North Broadway.

Wednesday morning he was coming south on Broadway above his home when a stray dog ran from the roadside and attempted to bite his horses. Trall stopped the team, and taking a brick from the wagon stepped down on the single-tree and threw the missile. At the same time the dog slightly scratched one of the horses. The animal jumped forward, throwing Trall under the wagon.

The wheels passed over the lower part of his body, fracturing his right hip and severely injuring him internally.

He was given temporary relief by Dr. Randall at the North End Dispensary and sent to the Mullanphy Hospital. The Dispensary physician says his condition is critical.

RUMOR OF AN ULTIMATUM.

Kruger Said to Have Demanded Troops' Withdrawal.

A REPORT OF AN INVASION.

MANY UNAUTHENTICATED STORIES AGITATE LONDON.

England Is Going Ahead With War Preparations, but the Progress of Mobilization Is Not Rapid.

PRETORIA, Oct. 4.—A more extended account of the speech of President Kruger at the adjournment of the Raad yesterday is obtainable. According to trustworthy reports he said:

"Everything points to war, because a spirit of falsehood has overtaken other countries, and because the people of the Transvaal wish to govern themselves. Although thousands may come to attack us, we have nothing to fear, for the Lord is the final arbiter and He will decide.

"Bullets came by thousands at the time of the Jameson raid, but the burghers were untouched. Over a hundred were killed on the other side, showing that the Lord directed our bullets. The Lord rules the world."

Mr. J. M. A. Wolmarans, one of the two non-official members of the executive council, said he hoped that when the Raads reassembled they would be without a convention and would be a free people. God, he declared, had often used England to bring the burghers back to the faith of their forefathers. In the course of his speech he exclaimed: "England has refused everything—even arbitration."

LONDON, Oct. 4.—No definite news has been received to-day of a change in the condition between England and the Transvaal, but the papers are full of rumors that have not been authenticated. One is that the Boers have sent an ultimatum to England, demanding the withdrawal of the troops from the frontiers within 48 hours.

Another report says that the British troops have invaded the Transvaal.

Neither of these reports are fully credited here.

The dispatches from South Africa from New Castle, Natal, report that the telegraphic communication is interrupted beyond Charlestown, where the stores have been looted by the natives since the departure of the whites.

Stories of the movement of the Boers and British, and of the hurried muster and dispatch of troops on both sides, have come from other points. A telegram from Ladysmith, Natal, says that the Orange Free State troops have occupied and closed Bothas Pass, on the Free State border, and that Commandant Allriche, chief of the Free State Artillery, is proceeding in the direction of Kimberly with a considerable force of artillery. Another force of artillery under Commandant Binging has gone to Harrismith, while Commandant Smith commands a force of artillery en route to Kroonstadt.

While all the dispatches from South Africa dwell upon the conditions of wild excitement there and the expected imminence of a Boer attack, there is in reality little change in the situation, although the massing of the Boers in all directions inevitably increases the tension.

While constant military orders are being issued here, progress seems very slow, and it must still be weeks before Great Britain will be in a position to strike, although it is believed the British troops now at the front or near it are sufficient to protect British territory. The Government is certainly not showing any signs of haste in sending an ultimatum.

This is probably due to a recognition that Great Britain is not yet ready to substitute force for negotiation; and the Cabinet, therefore, is giving the Transvaal every chance to accept the latest proposals.

The Stock Exchange was influenced during the opening hours to-day by vague rumors that Queen Victoria had cabled President Kruger and President Steyn, holding out the olive branch, and by a report that the Boers had been defeated in a small engagement.

Prices rose, but there was a speedy relapse when both stories were discredited.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, the distinguished Liberal statesman, member of Parliament for West Monmouthshire, has another slashing attack in to-day's papers upon the policy of the Secretary of State for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain.

He reiterates his original statement that Mr. Chamberlain's assertion that the Transvaal refused to redress the grievances of the Outlanders is the reverse of the case; and he insists that Great Britain is responsible for "slamming the door in the face of President Kruger just when arrangements were approaching a settlement."

LEADS THE BRITISH IN TRANSVAAL.

Major-General Sir Redvers Buller, who has been placed in command of the English forces, and will conduct the war against the Boers.

BRITISH ROUGH RIDERS ON THE BORDER.

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.

How the Boers Will Operate When the War Begins.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The various announcements regarding Boer movements seem to indicate their probable plan of campaign in the event of hostilities. Their chief force, apparently, would surround the narrow stretch of Natal territory jutting into the Transvaal, thus threatening Laing's Nek, Charlestown and Dundee, while the Orange Free State commando from Harrismith is expected to operate near Van Reenan's Pass, and threatening Ladysmith.

Military critics are confident that Great Britain will hold her own in Natal. The Free State commanders appear to be moving slowly. It is probable that the Government has loaned a portion of the Free State artillery to the Transvaal. The only concentration at present is at Harrismith, in the northeastern section of the Free State, and at Boshof, northwest of Bloemfontein, a position threatening Kimberley and fourteen streams; at Rouxville, where the Burghers expect the aid of the disloyal portion of the Free Staters; and at Allwal, north in Cape Colony.

Lichtenburg is the base of Commandant Cronjes' movement on the western border, menacing the Mafeking Railway, between Mafeking and Vrybuurt, in Bechuanaland.

There is a well authenticated report that a large force of Boers is assembled at Selik, at the junction of the Crocodile and Pongola Rivers, evidently with the object of destroying the railway.

The northern commando, whose base is at Petersburg, confronts Plummer's column, which will move nearer the border to-day.

The report regarding the extent of Boer artillery is probably exaggerated, as it is believed the burghers posses few field guns, and it is unlikely that they would dismantle their forts in order to send garrison pieces to the front.

The military authorities estimate there are now 12,000 Boers in the field.

Late advices from Cape Town this afternoon indicate a widespread impression there that, unless the Boers begin hostilities by Thursday they will not fight but yield to the imperial demands when formulated.

The Cape House of Assembly last evening agreed to a motion instructing the Cape Government to demand the speedy return to Cape Colony of any and all rolling stock now in the Orange Free State or the Transvaal.

A special dispatch from Johannesburg says the Boer officials there continue to urge the British subjects who remain to leave, and it is believed that all who do not will be marched, under escort, along the railway until a train is reached to carry them off.

Orders have been issued from Pretoria closing all the saloons in the gold fields.

The Transvaal Government has taken over the Perreira mines and all the mines in the gold fields. A group of five of the Eckstein mines have been closed.

Additional transports with troops from India arrived this morning at Durban, Natal, and will proceed to the front immediately. It is reported there that the Boers are withdrawing from the Natal border owing to lack of forage.

LOOT A TREASURE TRAIN.

Boers Seize 500,000 Pounds in Gold on the Way to Cape Town.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The most sensational news from South Africa this morning is a reiteration of yesterday's report of the acquisition by the Transvaal authorities of 500,000 pounds in gold, which was on the way to Cape Town from Johannesburg. The confirmation of the story comes from two sources.

The Cape Argus asserts that the Boers made the seizure at Vereenigeng, the amount being the week's shipment of gold on the way from the Rand to Cape Town and forwarded treasure to Pretoria. The report is also confirmed by a cablegram received to-day by a mining company in London from their representative, which is to the effect that the train upon which he was traveling from Johannesburg to Cape Town was held up and looted by Boers, who secured 300,000 pounds in gold, the amount being considerably less than the original estimate.

There is nothing very tangible in to-day's war news; but the situation remains as strained as ever, unless hope may be derived from the apparent fact that the forces on the frontier are regarded by both sides as wholly defensive for the present, and from the statement that Mr. J. H. Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader in Cape Colony, is still prepared to endeavor to secure the adhesion of the Transvaal Government to the "irreducible minimum," proposed at the Bloemfontein conference to President Kruger by Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner, if the Imperial Government will stand by the high commissioner's original proposal.

GRANTED A CHANGE OF VENUE.

Cases of Strikers Sent from Marion to Johnson County.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 4.—Judge Vickers has granted a change of venue in the cases of William Smith, E. A. The case goes to Johnson County.

SAYS SHAMROCK WILL NOT WIN

Nautical Expert Spears Thinks the Cup Is Safe.

COLUMBIA IS THE BETTER BOAT.

SAILS FASTER WHEN THE CONDITIONS ARE THE SAME.

Tuesday's Race Will Be Sailed Again Thursday, and Probably Over the Same 15-Miles-and-Turn Course.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The following prediction as to the outcome of the international yacht races is made for the Post-Dispatch by John R. Spears, the nautical expert:

"In spite of the fact that a lack of wind prevented the yachts covering their course within the time limit, and in spite of the manifest superiority of Capt. Hogarth's seamanship, the details of the trial show that when the wind comes alike to both, the Columbia easily outruns, outstretches and outpoints the Shamrock in winds from fresh down to light.

"The Shamrock will not get the cup."

Thursday's race will be sailed again to-morrow, and most probably over the same course—15 miles to stake boat and return to finish line—a total distance of 30 miles. To win the victor must cross the finish line within five and a half hours from the time of the start.

According to the agreement under which these races are to be sailed, the winner of three out of a series of five is to keep or take the cup, as the case may be. For to-morrow's race the yachts are to be sent fifteen miles from a point on Sandy Hook, either straight into the eye of the wind or dead before it and back again. Which course will be pursued will depend on the wind.

In the general terms if the wind blows from the sea toward the land they will be sent first into the eye of the wind and will come home before it.

If it blows from the land out to sea the yachts will be sent away before it to beat their way home after turning the outer mark.

To those not accustomed to such races it may be said that this mark is a floating platform made of planks and barrels. It carries a small staff, from which floats a small red and white flag. On a clear day it is easily seen two miles away, but to make its location more easily found a tugboat bearing a big ball suspended between its masts will be stationed near the float. The racing yachts are to pass between the float and the tug, and they will be timed as the do so in order that their work in the kind of wind and weather they have had may be compared.

The length of the course over which the yachts sail will be measured by the tug that guards the turning float. As soon as the flagship anchors to form the starting line the tug will steam away dragging a "taffrail log," a machine that measures the distance covered by the tug as it goes through the water. It takes no account of the tide; if the tide is with it the course will be more than fifteen sea miles long as measured on the bottom of the sea. If the tide is against it the distance is less. In either case, the course is as fair for one as for the other, and it is only worth mentioning because under some circumstances it might alter the calculations of the sharps who want to know how fast either one sailed.

This course of to-morrow is to give the yachts a chance for what is called windward work. The one characteristic of a sailing ship that is more important than all others is the ability to work into an adverse wind. It is for that reason that the first race is laid for windward work. Of course the wind may shift after the race is started, but that is one of the misfortunes that cannot be provided for.

Saturday a triangular course, ten miles long on a side, will be laid out. Two tugs and two floats are required for this—one for each of the two outer angles of the course. When the spectator sees two tugs carrying floats cross the line he may know a triangular course is to be followed. And because of the importance of windward work one of the sides of the triangle will be laid so that it lies right in the eye of the wind, if that be possible.

On the other legs of the course the yachts will run free, but not, of course, before the wind.

Now, because of the lay of the land—the position of the coasts of Long Island and New Jersey—the starting point for each race is likely to be the Sandy Hook Lightship—the red hulk that is anchored about seven miles to the eastward of the point of the Hook as a guide-mark for shipping. But at times the wind comes so that the Scotland Lightship, a yellow hulk 4¾ miles nearer Sandy Hook, is more convenient and it might easily happen that it would be used, especially in the triangular course. Then, too, one one occasion the Racing Committee, on finding the starting ground at the Sandy Hook Lightship covered with excursion boats, quietly sent the racers to the other lightship and started them there before the excursion skippers knew what was to occur.

The third race will be laid on the windward course. If a fourth race is needed it will be on the triangular course, and a fifth race would once more take the straightaway course.

The starting line is to be formed by the flagship of the New York Yacht Club anchoring near one of the lightships mentioned. The usual distance is 200 yards, but there is no specified distance in the agreement.

To get the yachts across the line a preparatory gun on the flagship will be fired 15 minutes before the crossing time. This will start the racers milling about, each trying to get in a better position for crossing the line than the other. This jockeying work, as it is called, will become hotter 10 minutes later, when a second gun, called the warning gun is fired, for then only five minutes will remain before the third gun, which is the starting signal. Finally the third gun will be fired, and then the two yachts are free to cross; they may sail into the smoke of the gun, if they are skillful enough to get the right position.

But after this third gun sounds the racers have two minutes left during which they may cross, and a fourth gun will announce the end of that limit. Each racer will be timed on the second it crosses by a chronometer on the flagship bridge.

Each race is to be started at 11 o'clock if possible, but a dead calm or a fog or a heavy gale—a real storm—would necessarily postpone the race, and it is agreed that no race shall be started after 12.30 o'clock. Further than that, to avoid a drifting match, wherein a boat may win rather by luck than by the qualities of the yachts or crews, it is agreed if one of the yachts is not at the home line within five hours and thirty minutes the race shall be declared off and the same course will then be laid out on the next race day.

If either boat is seriously crippled by accident before the race is started time for repairs will be allowed, but if anything carries away after the signal the sufferer must do its best with its repairs as it sails the course and take the consequences. For this is to be a test of construction as well as design and seamanship.

ANALYSIS OF THE RACE.

Neither Boat Disappointed Her Many Champions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—An analysis of the race shows that the boats are very evenly matched.

During the five and a half hours' sail the Shamrock was thrice ahead, and twice the Yankee boat showed the way. For the first 10 minutes, the Shamrock led, and then for five minutes the Columbia's graceful bow showed ahead of the green boat; for 45 minutes following the Shamrock held command, then for three hours the Columbia, and for the last hour and a half it was the Shamrock that led the way. The breeze shifted about through eight points of the compass.

Each in turn beat the other running before the wind and was in turn beaten beating against the winds at various stages of the race, so that many of the experts who saw the two boats are disinclined to believe there is a pin to choose between them, but when the race is closely analyzed it is absolutely proven that the Columbia showed her superiority at every point of sailing, running, reaching and beating whenever the wind freshened, and that it was only in the lightest air that the Shamrock could make headway against her. Both had their share of good and bad luck. The Columbia had the better of the shifting wind on the run down to the mark, and beat the Shamrock 2:44, while on the beat home, after increasing her lead to over a mile at one time, the Shamrock overhauled the Yankee and won a quarter of a mile ahead when the time allowance expired.

On the way down they maintained two parallel lines a mile apart, two fences through which not one of the pushing, crowding fleet of excursion vessels was permitted to poke its nose. The broad expanse of sea inside, without wash or swell, was left clear and free for the maneuvering of the racers. On the way back the patrol vessels were equally efficient. When the yachts were on the starboard tack the torpedo-boats were in column on the same course and the revenue cutters abreast, behind the yachts, thus forming a right angle, in the hollow of which the yachts sailed without embarrassment. When the yachts changed course, each vessel of the patrol fleet changed with it, simply altering the direction of the moving angle and keeping the excursion boats fenced off. It was only toward the close when the hope of finishing the race was given up that the excursion boats crowded about the ends of the patrol lines, many of them making straight for home.

The Shamrock made more fuss forward and dragged a wave aft. On the beat home against a head wind the Columbia showed her heels to the Irish boat unmistakably while the wind held. Time after time the Shamrock tried for the weather gauge, luffing, squeezing and pinching until her head sails trembled, but without avail. The Columbia not only held as high, but outfooted her tack after tack. The yachts made a beautiful spectacle as they beat to windward, heeling over to the breeze, the water sliding swiftly back from their sharklike bows. Whenever they smashed into an unusually large seat the spray spurted from either side 20 feet into the air. After the Columbia had gotten a mile ahead and the yachts were way over under the Jersey shore the breeze again half failed, and the Shamrock drew gradually ahead. It was marvelous that in so light a breeze a boat could slip so swiftly through the sea. After that the Shamrock was never headed, but from that time to the finish the Columbia had nothing but bad luck. In addition to her faster footing powers in the extremely light air every puff of the capricious wind seemed to strike the Shamrock and leave the Yankee boat practically becalmed. Edge as she would toward every streak of wind, she seemed unable to find it. The Shamrock gained foot by foot until she overhauled the Yankee, crossed her bows, and when the time limit was up was fully a quarter of a mile ahead.

LICENSES TO BE REVOKED.

Names of the Steamer Masters Who Disobeyed the Course Rules.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Capt. Robley D. Evans last night telegraphed to the Treasury Department in Washington, recommending the suspension of the licenses of the masters of the steamers Magenta, The Idlewild and the Glen Island, and the license of the pilot of the yacht White Ladye. He had charge of the revenue cutters and torpedo boats to which the Treasury Department had assigned the task of keeping the course of the yacht race free from interference and the offending officials, it is claimed, failed to observe the regulations.

OPIUM MORPHINE, LAUDANUM AND LIQUOR HABITS PAINLESSLY CURED BY

FREE TRIAL TREATMENT OPACURA

Sent to any sufferer for the asking—a sufficient quantity being sent to convince the patient that OPACURA will relieve all desire and positively cure the habit. OPACURA is the FORMULA OF ONE OF CHICAGO'S LEADING PHYSICIANS whose successes in the cure of those addicted to the use of Opium, Laudanum, Morphine and Liquor have excited widespread comment in the medical profession. A number of men of means, several of whom were formerly habitues cured by him, have taken steps to give this treatment, under the name of OPACURA, the greatest publicity, so that the thousands of sufferers who can not come to Chicago to see the physician personally can have the full benefit of this treatment at home. OPACURA takes the place of opium, morphine, laudanum and liquor while under treatment and finally effects a complete cure; no pain, no nervousness, no opiates after beginning treatment. As soon as the opium or liquor is expelled from the system the desire is gone. Opacura treatment can therefore be easily discontinued as the cure is perfect and permanent. Do not despair of ridding yourself from your terrible bondage until you have given Opacura free trial treatment a test. Sent in plain package. Can be received and taken privately until cured. The liquor treatment can be given without the knowledge of patient. State which treatment is required—liquor or drug.

HIS HYPNOTIC WILL POWER.

Mrs. Endsley's Comment on Lieut. Clarence Delafield.

SHE EXPLAINS HIS INFLUENCE.

HE WILL WED MISS ENDSLEY THIS EVENING.

Groom Has Also Won Over His Great Uncle, to the Surprise of the Family and the Mother's Indignation.

A telegram from Edwardsville, Ill., to the Post-Dispatch Wednesday contains the information that Lieut. Clarence Delafield, an employe of the Missouri-Edison Co. will be married to Miss Jessie Endsley, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Spencer, the bride's grandmother, at Poag, Ill.

Last Monday a dispatch from Edwardsville stated that a marriage license had been issued to the couple, Delafield having met his sweetheart while she was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Spencer, and great-uncle, Mr. Charles Gerry.

Mrs. George Endsley of 2819 Locust street, the mother of the bride, who has throughout the course of Delafield's suit opposed his marriage to her daughter, was in complete ignorance of the couple's intentions when seen Wednesday morning.

"I have received no news at all," said Mrs. Endsley, "and am dependent entirely upon the papers for whatever information I receive.

"When my daughter left to visit her grandmother, about two weeks ago, all of us presumed she was still opposed to this man's advances; so you may readily imagine our surprise at the issuance of a license and the news that they are to be married at once.

"I can ascribe Delafield's complete influence over Jessie to no other cause than some hynotic power he is able to wield, and I am confirmed in this belief by the fact that my uncle, Mr. Gerry, who was once so bitter against him, is now the strongest ally Delafield possesses. How he was able to bring this about I am utterly at a loss to understand in any other way than the theory I have advanced."

Time and time again has Jessie promised never to see him, and I am sure she was sincere in her statements, but she, apparently, was quite unable to resist this spell that Delafield seemed to cast over her.

"Delafield makes a good impression on one at first meeting. He is pleasant and talks well. It took me several months to discover that he was a married man, and his former employer told me it was seven years before he found cause to dismiss him."

TWO FIGHTS WITH INDIANS.

Troops Guarding Linemen Lose Three Killed and Four Are Wounded.

ORTIZ, Mex., Oct. 4.—Lepez Gonzales, head of a force of linemen sent out to repair lines in the Yaquis country, has returned and announces that it is vain to attempt to keep the lines in operation. As soon as the wires are repaired at one point the Indians cut them at another. Gonzales and party were accompanied by a troop of cavalry and were twice engaged by the Indians. In the second fight three soldiers were killed and four were wounded.

COLLISION OF STREET

Dr. Baughan, Government Inspector, Hurt.

A Suburban electric car crashed into the rear end of a stockyards electric car at East St. Louis at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, seriously maiming Dr. Baughan, the government inspector at the National Stock Yards, injuring F. W. Hopkins and A. W. Allen of St. Louis, who were riding on the rear platform of the stockyards car.

Dr. Baughan's left leg was fractured below the knee and he was removed to St. Mary's Infirmary in St. Louis.

Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Allen received slight bruises about their bodies and were immediately to the stockyards to attend their vocations.

Mr. Hopkins lives at Jefferson avenue and Olive street and Mr. Allen at 821 ... avenue, St. Louis.

The accident is said to have been caused by the motorman of the Suburban losing control of the power, whereby the car overtook the stockyards car at the way and Main street from the momentum gained on the incline at the Cahokia viaduct.

Both cars were wrecked. The rear platform of the front car was greatly splintered. The headlight and controller of the Suburban car were totally destroyed, causing damages to the extent of several hundred dollars.

The Time Comes

To every elderly woman when an important functional change takes place. This is called "The Change of Life." The entire system undergoes a change. Dreadful diseases, such as cancer and consumption, are often contracted at this time. McELREE'S WINE OF CARDUI strengthens and purifies the entire system and brings the sufferer safely over these pitfalls. Its effects when used by elderly women have been wonderful. It is good for all menstrual troubles, but it is especially recommended at this time. Ask your druggist for the famous Wine of Cardui. $1.00 a bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Concordia, Kansas, Feb. 28. 1899.

I think it my duty to write you about myself. I am 44 years old, and I was very sick last summer from the Change of Life. Two of the best doctors in Grand Island, Neb., after treating me, gave me up to die. As a last resort I finally tried Wine of Cardui. I am happy to say it helped me from the first dose. After using it awhile I was in better health than for many years. Another spell has lately come on me and I sent down town last night for a bottle of Wine of Cardui again. After taking it a few hours I am very much better to-day. It is a pleasure to tell others about this wonderful medicine.

New Zealand's experience should lead us to consider earnestly the rational solution of our labor problems.

The nation has two heroes. Admiral Dewey, the hero of Manila, has been honored by the nation's official representatives and by the people. Rear Admiral Schley, the hero of Santiago, whose ship was scarred by Spanish shells and whose guns smashed Cervera's squadron, has been snubbed and maltreated by the officials at Washington, but the people honor him for his splendid services. In New York and Washington his ovations were scarcely less than Dewey's. The people cannot be fooled. They knew who did the work at Santiago. Poor Sampson, who is forced to slip around by backways to avoid odious comparisons, has been placed in a false position by his fool official friends, who tried to make a hero out of a man who was ten miles away from the battle.

THE VENEZUELA AWARD.

The Venezuela award is satisfactory to both parties to the controversy.

The Venezuelan arbitration is a triumph of reason over folly, of right over might.

There never was any good cause of war between Great Britain and Venezuela, as is shown by decision of the court. A quarrel which by any means can be composed by arbitration need not be settled by war. And what quarrel cannot be so composed if governments are controlled by the simple, obvious principles of morality.

This case is of greatest value to the cause of progress and civilization, because it is sure to be granted the authority of precedent by many nations and so, by degrees, acquire the force of law. The idea underlying it is so obviously correct, that it cannot be rejected. It must, in the near future, be adopted by all civilized nations as a principle of international law, and war become impossible, except in the rare cases of irreconcilable differences.

The indignation of Mr. Hanna at the idea of Dewey for President is highly amusing.

ANOTHER DEAD; ANOTHER CRIPPLED.

To the long record of killings and maimings by street cars with worthless fenders must now be added a boy crushed to death and a woman crippled for life.

For the sake of greater profit, the street railway combine is expending thousands of dollars on new tracks. To suit its own convenience, it will also spend other large sums in painting the cars yellow and in other changes. In face of the continual additions to the death list, will it not at once give the people assurance that the ineffective fenders will be discarded at the earliest possible moment and that all cars will be equipped with the best fenders in the market?

It has been proved by numerous costly tests that the snap-and-catch-'em contrivance depending upon the quick action of the motorman, is useless. Yet the street railway managers are experimenting with a new fender of this sort. In almost every accident, the victim gets in the way of the car so suddenly that there is no time to work such a fender. There are life saving fenders. Cars in other cities have been equipped with them. The always ready fender is the only one that should be adopted.

"The fortunes of war placed these people (the Filipinos) under our protection and we are bound to protect them," says Congressman Payne of New York. The protection we are giving the Filipinos is extermination. They were our allies and we have turned upon them as an enemy. Such statesmen as Congressman Payne give fair-minded people a pain.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to wish that Secretary Gage could be made President of the United States. If we are to have a financier in the White House, however, we might as well have a bigger one than Gage. Possibly John Rockefeller might be persuaded to succeed Mr. McKinley. His election fund would be a stunner.

Ex-Speaker Reed's private secretary, Amos L. Allen, is for war expansion and has been rewarded for his "patriotism" by a nomination to Congress in the First Maine District. A serpent's tooth is dull compared with the thanklessness of a private secretary.

Republican organs are trying to convey the impression that Mr. McLean will not spend much money in Ohio. The Hanna funds would be much more useful with such a condition.

What does St. Louis' Republican vote amount to when the wants of Eastern cities are always considered by the Administration before any attention is given our needs?

If Supreme Judges in New York have to contribute from $3500 to $10,000 each to campaign funds, do they accept railroad passes and other things in order to get even?

The Administration may need a good deal of powder in assimilating the Filipinos, but it might have spared a little for a Dewey salute in St. Louis.

High tariffers are surprised to read that shortage in the Australian wool crop started the advance in wool prices.

Germany has just paid Spain $5,000,000 for the Caroline Islands, without getting an insurrection along with them.

With Tom Reed a copperhead and his private secretary a loyal man, we are indeed in strange conditions.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

With Gen. Jan Kock on the Natal border, the Boers may accomplish something to crow over.

There was a "great wave" of cheering when Dewey left the White House on Monday, but it did not rock him any.

If Mr. Bull wants to see himself as others see him he should take time to read the French newspapers this autumn.

Women may not take a conspicuous part in the Transvaal war, but we may expect to hear a good deal of Ladysmith.

Mismanagement by the British War Office is reported from the Transvaal. Will Tommy Atkins have to eat embalmed beef?

If Andree has found the North Pole and is alive, he will have a surprise for the world which will even outrank one of Dewey's astonishers.

Missouri's crop of 9,500,000 bushels of potatoes, if cooked with their jackets on, will be a very wholesome addition to the country's food supply.

Ex-Superintendent Nicholas Karr denies that he told a lady lawyer to go to Hades. It is likely that only lawyers of the masculine sex go there.

If Secretary Gage is to desert Chicago to become a resident of New York, it will be rather mortifying to the Windy City. She would almost as lief see one of her prominent people remove to St. Louis.

Prof. Lombard, author of "Observations of a Bachelor," having just married a former resident of St. Louis, will doubtless be too happy to find time to supplement it with a volume on the observations of a married man.

It is to be regretted that the telegraph does not mention the sex of the New York baby that weighs only a pound and one ounce. The omission leaves the nation in doubt whether the little thing is to be called Dewey or Deweyine.

Charlie Winkler, the Delaware boy who clambered to the platform of a car and received a handshake and a $10 gold piece from Dewey, will be envied by every kid in the United States. If Charlie had slain an Indian he would not be considered any luckier.

A DAILY MAGAZINE

MRS. RORER ON MEATS.

Mrs. Roarer's talk, which she gave before about 500 women, was on the subject of meats. Only one-fifth of the people of the world eat meat, she said, and nine-tenths of this one-tenth have most of the diseases. She said if the women would go to the swine pens they would see what the men there would call fine animals. But, she said, these same animals are so full of diseases that some of them cannot stand on their feet.

Meat once a week, she said, was a good rule. It is a fascinating sort of food to eat, but it was a great producer of gout and rheumatism. From a health point of view, she said, tough meat was better than tender, since the tender meat came from an undeveloped animal. Tough meat, she said, became appetizing when cooked in a moist heat, and if not in a moist heat, it should be chopped fine.—Indianapolis News.

CO-OPERATORS IN HOLLAND.

A colony on the Tolstoi plan has been founded by some of the Netherlandish disciples of the Russian teacher at Apeldoorn, in Holland, where William III. had his favorite hunting-seat before he became King of England. Three professional men have renounced their positions, and have joined as agricultural laborers. One is Prof. Van Ries, the other two are Protestant clergymen. Each is to be paid a yearly wage of 700 florins for his labor.

BIG JOB OF PAINTING.

The Eiffel Tower, in Paris, is undergoing a complete renovation in preparation for next year's Exposition. It has been decided to paint the entire structure with an enamel paint in five shades. The dome and summit are to be of a light lemon chrome, and the shades will graduate to the pedestal, which will be a rich, dark orange. For the two coats which are to be applied upon the tower nearly 50 tons of enamel paint will be employed.

BRITISH PRECOCITY.

THE DESERTED HOUSE.

Lo! the spirit has fled, and only the casket is left
In its emptiness here!
Of voices and feet, of laughter and sorrow bereft,
There remains to us—fear!

In the glory of noon, if open the shutters you throw,
Flooding chambers to gold,
The silence will breathe of a past that we never may know;
'Tis a tale that is told!

Much more when the moon is hallowing woodland and hill
Shall we start at each sound;
At the whirr of a moth, at a mouse, our heart will stand still
In the silence profound.

In a mirror's pale gleam we shrink from an awe-stricken face,
And we strain sharpened ears;
But 'tis haunted alone by the ghosts of days dead, is this place,
With their laughter and tears.

THE DOG AND THE DUCKS.

Mr. R. C. W. Howard of Duval County, Florida, vouches for the truth of the following incident which came under his observation: Rover, a large, shaggy dog, was the occupant of a well-kept kennel and was frequently companioned by a duck, which finally gave a supreme test to his friendship by laying an even dozen of eggs in a corner of his kennel. Rover did not resent the encroachment, but on the contrary seemed to feel the responsibility of guardianship and at night lay with his nose a little closer to the door of the kennel, while the duck sat on the eggs in her pre-empted corner. In due season eight ducklings appeared and Rover appeared as delighted as if he had dug a woodchuck out of his hole in the pasture lot. A week later the mother duck lost her life in a cow-kick accident and Rover at once assumed the care of the web-footed orphans, nestling them in his long hair at night and in the daytime swimming with them in the pond.

THREE GIRL FADS.

Hand-painted large buttons are in favor. A girl who can paint a set for herself is in luck.

Girls are making long, narrow sofa pillows. About 16 inches by 28 is the rule.

An early-rising fad has hit the girls. Bath, breakfast and golf, or a bicycle ride between 6:30 and 11 is a healthful programme.

HOW HE LOST HER.

"Did her father throw you out?"

"No; it was her great-great-great-grandfather."

"He's dead and gone long ago."

"Yes; but she has just discovered he was a Revolutionary hero of some kind, and that decided her not to marry me."

TUMBLED.

Pearl—Is it true that her brother fell at San Juan hill?

Ruby—Yes; while touring the island this summer he attempted to mount the hill on his bicycle.

TRICKED.

Tourist: There must be a fine echo here.
Guide: Just shout "Two glasses of beer!"
Tourist (does so): I don't hear any echo.
Guide: Never mind, there come the two beers!—Fliegende Blatter.

THE DEVILLE STORY

FOR three years years that had joy and sorand heartache. For she had loved him—been full of both row; of happiness three long years she had waited for the words which would brighten her whole future—just three little words—"I love you."

"Why doesn't he speak?" she questioned herself. "Why doesn't he tell me that he loves me?" Suddenly she caught her breath. "Ah! I remember—there was something—to-night—he said he would tell me—perhaps"—And as she left the room a new joy shone in her eyes and a new hope dawned in her heart.

As they entered the box the orchestra was playing the soft, sad strains of a selection from "Martha." Cecile settled herself coslily in one of the most comfortable of the chairs and Hubert seated himself at her left.

"There is a new feature for to-night, Cecile," he said, studying the programme, "a dancer—her first appearance in London." Cecile glanced at her bill. "What an odd name," she mused—"Zanta. I wonder who she is."

"An Italian, one of the boys at the club told me. He met her once. Said she was a sweet little thing. Her life story has been a sad one. She was married, but left her husband—deserted him, they say"——His face suddenly darkened. He bent nearer. "Cecile," he whispered in a changed voice, "I told you I had something to tell you—something about my past—a story. To-night you shall hear it, for I believe that you and you only, can give me the sympathy I crave."

The music crashed! The theatre was in darkness. Then a steady blue light illumined the stage and from the orchestra there floated strains so weird, so strange that Cecile shuddered. The audience was in a state of breathless expectancy.

Then the weird lights changed to a rosy hue and there bounded on the stage a little figure clad in clouds of filmy lace, her dark hair falling in long ringlets about her fair shoulders. Her grand dark eyes flashed a glance around the theatre. They reached the lower box—paused—the dancer staggered backward, clasping her hands to her heart.

A low cry at her side caused Cecile to start toward her companion. He had half arisen from his place and with dilated eyes was gazing at the dancer. With a supreme effort the dancer collected herself; the music crashed anew; the lights grew brighter, and "Zanta," the pet of Italy, installed herself in the hearts of that London audience.

Cecile sat in stunned silence amid the applause which followed—a silence which remained unbroken by her companion.

"Zanta" was to appear again later in the evening. She waited eagerly for the arrival of the number, a vague fear filling her heart. It seemed years to her before the lights were again extinguished and the calciums flooded the stage. A round of applause greeted the second appearance of the dancer.

At that moment a messenger entered the box and handed to Hubert a folded paper. With trembling fingers he tore it open, Cecile watching his face in breathless silence. Without a word he handed her the note. "Read it, Cecile," he whispered in a happy, ringing voice. "It will tell you bettter than I can," and with a fast-beating heart she opened and read:

"Dear Hubert—Five years ago I left you. I was mad—jealously mad; I cannot tell you what my life since then has been—nothing but sorrow and bitter atonement. But yet I was true to you—with all my heart and soul, for I love you! Ah, you do not know! I am to appear again this evening. If you still love me, and as a sign of your forgiveness, throw me the flower which you wear upon your coat. It will——"

Cecile dropped the paper with a low, bitter cry. The dance was ended and "Zanta" was making her last sweeping bow. As in a dream Cecile saw her companion arise. In his hand was a single rose. Bending his head, he pressed his lips upon it, then flung it upon the stage, where it fell fluttering at the feet of the dancer.

With a glad cry "Zanta" snatched it from the floor to her lips, her dark eyes flashing in her joy and excitement. Then, amid a storm of applause, she tripped from the stage.

"Yes," he whispered, a sudden light of joy illuming his face, "she is"—he paused and softly added—"my wife."

And the flame of one woman's happiness went out

Tells the Post-Dispatch Readers What She Thinks of the Nagging Husband.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

EVERY day or so I read something written at or about the henpecked husband. Even when I go to the theater I am fortunate not to have a husband in deadly fear of his wife served up to me in the performance.

In fact, the henpecked husband may almost be looked up as a classic.

Now, I should like to have a word to say on the subject of the disagreeable, critical, never satisfied husband, and I hope a few of this gentry may have my views on the subject placed before them, even if it be necessary to use force to secure them such a wholesome diversion for a quarter of an hour.

Nothing so quickly tells upon a woman's looks as a nagging husband.

Her face soon takes on the easily recognized expression of a perfectly helpless woman who knows that, no matter what she does or how it is done, she will be criticised by the fault-finding husband.

The Nagger Who Superintends the Kitchen.

There are several types of masculine snaggers.

There is the domestic nagger who superintends the kitchen, does the marketing and runs the money.

He is a wearing one, as most of us can testify.

He concerns himself with the smallest details of housekeeping and not a penny is expended without accounting to his nagship.

You will find him at home in the kitchen,

He takes a look at the size of the washing.

where he is freely despised by the cook. He inspects the ice box and tests the milk bottles by way of his too keen nose.

On Monday he takes a look at the size of the washing and can tell you to a fraction how much soap it takes to do a fair day's laundering for any family that ever grew.

He buys the baby's shoes and does all his wife's shopping.

And she is the miserable little woman you may happen to know who rarely has five cents for car fare and never money enough to admit of her making the smallest purchase unless her husband goes with her.

The sarcastic nagger is another type.

He doesn't look after the kitchen, and is often a man with many good qualities, but he thinks it is clever to ridicule everything his wife says or does or wears, and his idea of brilliant wit is to indulge in a continuous recital, with many a loud laugh interpolated, of his wife's blunders.

His existence appears to be one merry jest at his wife's expense. And what that little woman suffers no pen can describe.

Then there is the fuss-and-feathers nagger—the husband who fidgets away his own life and wears the soul out of his wife.

He never is satisfied with his seat in a car.

He fusses with the waiter at the hotel or restaurant.

If he goes to the theater he rows at the box-office, and has an altercation with the usher.

He holds lengthy arguments with every one he has to do with.

Every bill presented to him sounds the clarion note for a protest, and tradesmen grow to dread his wife's custom.

He raises windows when they are closed, closes them when they are raised, is cold when the rest of the world perspires and finds it stifling in a car or public room when other people are sneezing.

The little woman who looks at you from the breakfast table is the sweetheart of your honeymoon.

I just want to say to the gentlemen of the nagging fraternity:

If you want your wives to remain young and charming don't worry them into wrinkles and faces expressive of despair by nagging them.

If you want your wives to look and to be happy, bright, sweet and beautiful women, don't treat them as though they were babies or idiots.

Don't drown the memory of your wedding bells by an endless fuss and clatter about trifles.

Don't forget that the little woman who looks at you from the breakfast table, and whose whole day you make happy or miserable by a smile or frown, is the sweetheart of your honeymoon.

Don't nag, please, my lords and gentlemen, don't nag!

HARRIET HUBBARD AYER.

THE PULITZER SCHOLARSHIPS.

AN admirable expression of the democratic ideal in education is in Joseph Pulitzer's Free Scholarships. The ambitious schoolboys whose parents are poor place their hopes in them; all sincere students are interested in them.

Before Mr. Pulitzer initiated them, ten years ago, pupils in the public school class evoked images of vials in which the teachers poured science, and the adverse critics said, "It is as if it were necessary that physicians and cobblers should know the same things."

Mr. Pulitzer had a retort to that prepared. He wrote: "My special object is to help the poor. The rich can help themselves. My injunction against favoritism must, therefore, be understood as admitting of favoritism to the poor. I believe in self-made men, but it is not the aim of this plan to help people for ordinary money-making purposes. College education is not needed for that. There are nobler purposes in life, and my hope is not that these scholarships will make better butchers, bakers, brokers and bank cashiers, but that they will help to make teachers, scholars, physicians, authors, journalists, judges, lawyers and statesmen.

"They certainly ought to increase, not diminish, the number of those who, under our free institutions, rise from the humblest to the highest positions. I have not entered upon this scheme without careful thought. It was a dream of my youth. It is the conviction of experience.

"I shall be happy indeed if it should, even to the smallest degree, relieve poverty, aid the cause of education and lift into a higher plane of citizenship and usefulness to the State, children of the poor, who, in spite of talent, without such education and great hardship, cannot compete for the nobler prizes of an intellectual career."

The scheme, detailed to the City Superintendent of Schools in a letter, dated May 21, 1889, was to give to 12 boys—chosen among the graduates of the grammar schools—$250 a year each, during their five years' course in the College of the City of New York, or any other college that a committee designated.

The graduate of the grammar school went to college, developed his general knowledge, acquired the perception of his particular faculties, of his individuality, and found himself incapable—in the lack of money, in the lack of ability to earn money—helpless at the threshold of his career.

The remedy was applied immediately. Mr. Pulitzer gave an endowment fund of $100,000 to Columbia University. By the terms of it 30 elect among the grammar school graduates receive free tuition in the preparatory high school and the collegiate courses of the university every year.

The preparatory studies are in the Horace Mann School. They take three or four years, in the course of which each elect under the scholarship received $750. At the end of it he may go to a college that he has chosen and receive $250 a year, or enter Columbia University—the School of Arts, Mines or Law—and receive free tuition, besides $250 a year.

Since 1892 this new system of Joseph Pulitzer's free scholarships has been in triumphal operation. A committee, composed of W. H. Merrill, representing Mr. Pulitzer; Virgil Prettyman, principal of the Horace Mann High School, and Joseph J. Kittel, member of the Board of Education, has the task of selecting the candidates.

Joseph Pulitzer's free scholarships are a triumph of the democratic ideal in education.

Post-Dispatch Music Appreciated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The copy of music issued in your last Sunday's Post-Dispatch is good and up-to-date. This seems to be one of the best ways of bringing your paper into every house, as there are very few families in which there is no piano or organ. Hoping that you will continue this.

Dewey's Home Coming.

From the Jerseyville (Ill.) Democrat.

The Democrat arranged with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to have it wired here as soon as it was known, that Dewey had arrived off Sandy Hook. At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning the wire was received at this office and the town celebrated the arrival of the hero in a fitting manner. The Democrat fired an Admiral salute of 17 guns, using cannon crackers, as they were the nearest to a cannon of anything in town. Others also gave the salute, and Mayor Shephard ordered the engineer at the waterworks to blow the Admiral salute on the whistle. Many houses decorated their buildings. Every one is glad to welcome the boy home

"The Exposition of 1903."

From the St. Louis Furniture News.

Under the above caption the New York Commercial says editorially:

"The States of the Mississippi Valley are getting ready to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase. An exposition is to be held at St. Louis in 1903 which, its promoters declare, will be equal in breadth and scope to the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. Fourteen States have been carved out of the Louisiana Purchase since the genius of Thomas Jefferson caused him to buy all that territory. * * * But for the acquisition of this imperial domain American authority to-day would extend very little beyond the Alleghenies, whereas it reaches from the mid-Atlantic to the South Seas. That the Exposition referred to will be a success we cannot doubt. The people who live in what was the Louisiana Territory are red-blooded. Pioneers and sons of pioneers, they have converted a wilderness into a garden, and have builded temples where architecture found its highest form in Indian tepees. Four years of preparation will make them masters of the situation, and if those who attend their World's Fair are not amply requited we shall be very much mistaken."

We reproduce the above to show our readers that the outside world has taken us at our word, and that now St. Louis has nothing to do but go ahead and redeem her promise. As intimated by Mr. J. W. Vancleave, one of St. Louis' leading and ablest business men, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch, whatever may have been our individual opinion of the wisdom of making the promise, the fact is, "we have made it," and as with St. Louis "nothing is impossible," the promise must be redeemed in a manner to reflect honor upon the citizens of the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley and of the Louisiana Purchase. But while honor is much to our citizens, it is not all. Advancement of the city's industries and material benefit to her people, more especially her workers, her producers, is also of vital importance, and as it is now an assured fact that the Exposition is to be held, the more successful it is the more benefit it will be to the city and its inhabitants. And the more united we are in its support the more successful it will be. As the growth and prosperity of all cities, or States, or countries, depends largely upon united effort, so the success of our Exposition depends upon the unanimity displayed by our citizens in its support. Individual selfishness should be obliterated and communal good our only aim

New Zealand's experience should lead us to consider earnestly the rational solution of our labor problems.

The nation has two heroes. Admiral Dewey, the hero of Manila, has been honored by the nation's official representatives and by the people. Rear Admiral Schley, the hero of Santiago, whose ship was scarred by Spanish shells and whose guns smashed Cervera's squadron, has been snubbed and maltreated by the officials at Washington, but the people honor him for his splendid services. In New York and Washington his ovations were scarcely less than Dewey's. The people cannot be fooled. They knew who did the work at Santiago. Poor Sampson, who is forced to slip around by backways to avoid odious comparisons, has been placed in a false position by his fool official friends, who tried to make a hero out of a man who was ten miles away from the battle.

THE VENEZUELA AWARD.

The Venezuela award is satisfactory to both parties to the controversy.

The Venezuelan arbitration is a triumph of reason over folly, of right over might.

There never was any good cause of war between Great Britain and Venezuela, as is shown by decision of the court. A quarrel which by any means can be composed by arbitration need not be settled by war. And what quarrel cannot be so composed if governments are controlled by the simple, obvious principles of morality.

This case is of greatest value to the cause of progress and civilization, because it is sure to be granted the authority of precedent by many nations and so, by degrees, acquire the force of law. The idea underlying it is so obviously correct, that it cannot be rejected. It must, in the near future, be adopted by all civilized nations as a principle of international law, and war become impossible, except in the rare cases of irreconcilable differences.

The indignation of Mr. Hanna at the idea of Dewey for President is highly amusing.

ANOTHER DEAD; ANOTHER CRIPPLED.

To the long record of killings and maimings by street cars with worthless fenders must now be added a boy crushed to death and a woman crippled for life.

For the sake of greater profit, the street railway combine is expending thousands of dollars on new tracks. To suit its own convenience, it will also spend other large sums in painting the cars yellow and in other changes. In face of the continual additions to the death list, will it not at once give the people assurance that the ineffective fenders will be discarded at the earliest possible moment and that all cars will be equipped with the best fenders in the market?

It has been proved by numerous costly tests that the snap-and-catch-'em contrivance depending upon the quick action of the motorman, is useless. Yet the street railway managers are experimenting with a new fender of this sort. In almost every accident, the victim gets in the way of the car so suddenly that there is no time to work such a fender. There are life saving fenders. Cars in other cities have been equipped with them. The always ready fender is the only one that should be adopted.

"The fortunes of war placed these people (the Filipinos) under our protection and we are bound to protect them," says Congressman Payne of New York. The protection we are giving the Filipinos is extermination. They were our allies and we have turned upon them as an enemy. Such statesmen as Congressman Payne give fair-minded people a pain.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to wish that Secretary Gage could be made President of the United States. If we are to have a financier in the White House, however, we might as well have a bigger one than Gage. Possibly John Rockefeller might be persuaded to succeed Mr. McKinley. His election fund would be a stunner.

Ex-Speaker Reed's private secretary, Amos L. Allen, is for war expansion and has been rewarded for his "patriotism" by a nomination to Congress in the First Maine District. A serpent's tooth is dull compared with the thanklessness of a private secretary.

Republican organs are trying to convey the impression that Mr. McLean will not spend much money in Ohio. The Hanna funds would be much more useful with such a condition.

What does St. Louis' Republican vote amount to when the wants of Eastern cities are always considered by the Administration before any attention is given our needs?

If Supreme Judges in New York have to contribute from $3500 to $10,000 each to campaign funds, do they accept railroad passes and other things in order to get even?

The Administration may need a good deal of powder in assimilating the Filipinos, but it might have spared a little for a Dewey salute in St. Louis.

High tariffers are surprised to read that shortage in the Australian wool crop started the advance in wool prices.

Germany has just paid Spain $5,000,000 for the Caroline Islands, without getting an insurrection along with them.

With Tom Reed a copperhead and his private secretary a loyal man, we are indeed in strange conditions.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

With Gen. Jan Kock on the Natal border, the Boers may accomplish something to crow over.

There was a "great wave" of cheering when Dewey left the White House on Monday, but it did not rock him any.

If Mr. Bull wants to see himself as others see him he should take time to read the French newspapers this autumn.

Women may not take a conspicuous part in the Transvaal war, but we may expect to hear a good deal of Ladysmith.

Mismanagement by the British War Office is reported from the Transvaal. Will Tommy Atkins have to eat embalmed beef?

If Andree has found the North Pole and is alive, he will have a surprise for the world which will even outrank one of Dewey's astonishers.

Missouri's crop of 9,500,000 bushels of potatoes, if cooked with their jackets on, will be a very wholesome addition to the country's food supply.

Ex-Superintendent Nicholas Karr denies that he told a lady lawyer to go to Hades. It is likely that only lawyers of the masculine sex go there.

If Secretary Gage is to desert Chicago to become a resident of New York, it will be rather mortifying to the Windy City. She would almost as lief see one of her prominent people remove to St. Louis.

Prof. Lombard, author of "Observations of a Bachelor," having just married a former resident of St. Louis, will doubtless be too happy to find time to supplement it with a volume on the observations of a married man.

It is to be regretted that the telegraph does not mention the sex of the New York baby that weighs only a pound and one ounce. The omission leaves the nation in doubt whether the little thing is to be called Dewey or Deweyine.

Charlie Winkler, the Delaware boy who clambered to the platform of a car and received a handshake and a $10 gold piece from Dewey, will be envied by every kid in the United States. If Charlie had slain an Indian he would not be considered any luckier.

MRS. RORER ON MEATS.

Mrs. Rorer's talk, which she gave before about 500 women, was on the subject of meats. Only one-fifth of the people of the world eat meat, she said, and nine-tenths of this one-tenth have most of the diseases. She said if the women would go to the swine pens they would see what the men there would call fine animals. But, she said, these same animals are so full of diseases that some of them cannot stand on their feet.

Meat once a week, she said, was a good rule. It is a fascinating sort of food to eat, but it was a great producer of gout and rheumatism. From a health point of view, she said, tough meat was better than tender, since the tender meat came from an undeveloped animal. Tough meat, she said, became appetizing when cooked in a moist heat, and if not in a moist heat, it should be chopped fine.—Indianapolis News.

CO-OPERATORS IN HOLLAND.

A colony on the Tolstoi plan has been founded by some of the Netherlandish disciples of the Russian teacher at Apeldoorn, in Holland, where William III. had his favorite hunting-seat before he became King of England. Three professional men have renounced their positions, and have joined as agricultural laborers. One is Prof. Van Ries, the other two are Protestant clergymen. Each is to be paid a yearly wage of 700 florins for his labor.

BIG JOB OF PAINTING.

The Eiffel Tower, in Paris, is undergoing a complete renovation in preparation for next year's Exposition. It has been decided to paint the entire structure with an enamel paint in five shades. The dome and summit are to be of a light lemon chrome, and the shades will graduate to the pedestal, which will be a rich, dark orange. For the two coats which are to be applied upon the tower nearly 50 tons of enamel paint will be employed.

BRITISH PRECOCITY.

Mother: What's the matter, darling?
Little Girl: Oh, mummy, I helped Reggie and Charlie to build the Sand Castle, and now they say that they are B-Boers and I am an Outlander, and they're going to keep me out for s-seven years!—Punch.

THE DESERTED HOUSE.

Lo! the spirit has fled, and only the casket is left
In its emptiness here!
Of voices and feet, of laughter and sorrow bereft,
There remains to us—fear!

In the glory of noon, if open the shutters you throw,
Flooding chambers to gold,
The silence will breathe of a past that we never may know:
'Tis a tale that is told!

Much more when the moon is hallowing woodland and hill
Shall we start at each sound;
At the whirr of a moth, at a mouse, our heart will stand still
In the silence profound.

In a mirror's pale gleam we shrink from an awe-stricken face,
And we strain sharpened ears;
But 'tis haunted alone by the ghosts of days dead, is this place,
With their laughter and tears.

THE DOG AND THE DUCKS.

Mr. R. C. W. Howard of Duval County, Florida, vouches for the truth of the following incident which came under his observation: Rover, a large, shaggy dog, was the occupant of a well-kept kennel and was frequently companioned by a duck, which finally gave a supreme test to his friendship by laying an even dozen of eggs in a corner of his kennel. Rover did not resent the encroachment, but on the contrary seemed to feel the responsibility of guardianship and at night lay with his nose a little closer to the door of the kennel, while the duck sat on the eggs in her pre-empted corner. In due season eight ducklings appeared and Rover appeared as delighted as if he had dug a woodchuck out of his hole in the pasture lot. A week later the mother duck lost her life in a cow-kick accident and Rover at once assumed the care of the web-footed orphans, nestling them in his long hair at night and in the daytime swimming with them in the pond.

THREE GIRL FADS.

Hand-painted large buttons are in favor.
A girl who can paint a set for herself is in luck.
Girls are making long, narrow sofa pillows. About 16 inches by 28 is the rule.
An early-rising fad has hit the girls. Bath, breakfast and golf, or a bicycle ride between 6:30 and 11 is a healthful programme.

HOW HE LOST HER.

"Did her father throw you out?"
"No; it was her great-great-great-grandfather."
"He's dead and gone long ago."
"Yes; but she has just discovered he was a Revolutionary hero of some kind, and that decided her not to marry me."

TUMBLED.

Pearl—Is it true that her brother fell at San Juan hill?
Ruby—Yes; while touring the island this summer he attempted to mount the hill on his bicycle.

TRICKED.

Tourist: There must be a fine echo here.
Guide: Just shout "Two glasses of beer!"
Tourist (does so): I don't hear any echo.
Guide: Never mind, there come the two beers!—Fliegende Blatter.

THE DEVILLE STORY

FOR three years that had been full of both joy and sorrow; for and heartache. For she had loved him—three long years she had waited for the words which would brighten her whole future—just three little words—"I love you."

"Why doesn't he speak?" she questioned herself. "Why doesn't he tell me that he loves me?" Suddenly she caught her breath. "Ah! I remember—there was something—to-night—he said he would tell me—perhaps"——And as she left the room a new joy shone in her eyes and a new hope dawned in her heart.

As they entered the box the orchestra was playing the soft, sad strains of a selection from "Martha." Cecile settled herself coslily in one of the most comfortable of the chairs and Hubert seated himself at her left.

"There is a new feature for to-night, Cecile," he said, studying the programme, "a dancer—her first appearance in London." Cecile glanced at her bill. "What an odd name," she mused—"Zanta. I wonder who she is."

"An Italian, one of the boys at the club told me. He met her once. Said she was a sweet little thing. Her life story has been a sad one. She was married, but left her husband—deserted him, they say"——His face suddenly darkened. He bent nearer. "Cecile," he whispered in a changed voice, "I told you I had something to tell you—something about my past—a story. To-night you shall hear it, for I believe that you and you only, can give me the sympathy I crave."

The music crashed! The theatre was in darkness. Then a steady blue light illumined the stage and from the orchestra there floated strains so weird, so strange that Cecile shuddered. The audience was in a state of breathless expectancy.

Then the weird lights changed to a rosy hue and there bounded on the stage a little figure clad in clouds of filmy lace, her dark hair falling in long ringlets about her fair shoulders. Her grand dark eyes flashed a glance around the theatre. They reached the lower box—paused—the dancer staggered backward, clasping her hands to her heart.

A low cry at her side caused Cecile to start toward her companion. He had half arisen from his place and with dilated eyes was gazing at the dancer. With a supreme effort the dancer collected herself; the music crashed anew; the lights grew brighter, and "Zanta," the pet of Italy, installed herself in the hearts of that London audience.

Cecile sat in stunned silence amid the applause which followed—a silence which remained unbroken by her companion.

"Zanta" was to appear again later in the evening. She waited eagerly for the arrival of the number, a vague fear filling her heart. It seemed years to her before the lights were again extinguished and the calciums flooded the stage. A round of applause greeted the second appearance of the dancer.

At that moment a messenger entered the box and handed to Hubert a folded paper. With trembling fingers he tore it open, Cecile watching his face in breathless silence. Without a word he handed her the note. "Read it, Cecile," he whispered in a happy, ringing voice. "It will tell you bettter than I can," and with a fast-beating heart she opened and read:

"Dear Hubert—Five years ago I left you. I was mad—jealously mad; I cannot tell you what my life since then has been—nothing but sorrow and bitter atonement. But yet I was true to you—with all my heart and soul, for I love you! Ah, you do not know! I am to appear again this evening. If you still love me, and as a sign of your forgiveness, throw me the flower which you wear upon your coat. It will——"

Cecile dropped the paper with a low, bitter cry. The dance was ended and "Zanta" was making her last sweeping bow. As in a dream Cecile saw her companion arise. In his hand was a single rose. Bending his head, he pressed his lips upon it, then flung it upon the stage, where it fell fluttering at the feet of the dancer.

With a glad cry "Zanta" snatched it from the floor to her lips, her dark eyes flashing in her joy and excitement. Then, amid a storm of applause, she tripped from the stage.

"Yes," he whispered, a sudden light of joy illuming his face, "she is"—he paused and softly added—"my wife."

And the flame of one woman's happiness went out

Tells the Post-Dispatch Readers What She Thinks of the Nagging Husband.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

EVERY day or so I read something written at or about the henpecked husband. Even when I go to the theater I am fortunate not to have a husband in deadly fear of his wife served up to me in the performance.

In fact, the henpecked husband may almost be looked up as a classic.

Now, I should like to have a word to say on the subject of the disagreeable, critical, never satisfied husband, and I hope a few of this gentry may have my views on the subject placed before them, even if it be necessary to use force to secure them such a wholesome diversion for a quarter of an hour.

Nothing so quickly tells upon a woman's looks as a nagging husband.

Her face soon takes on the easily recognized expression of a perfectly helpless woman who knows that, no matter what she does or how it is done, she will be criticised by the fault-finding husband.

The Nagger Who Superintends the Kitchen.

There are several types of masculine naggers.

There is the domestic nagger who superintends the kitchen, does the marketing and runs the money.

He is a wearing one, as most of us can testify.

He concerns himself with the smallest details of housekeeping and not a penny is expended without accounting to his nagship.

You will find him at home in the kitchen,

He takes a look at the size of the washing.

where he is freely despised by the cook. He inspects the ice box and tests the milk bottles by way of his too keen nose.

On Monday he takes a look at the size of the washing and can tell you to a fraction how much soap it takes to do a fair day's laundering for any family that ever grew.

He buys the baby's shoes and does all his wife's shopping.

And she is the miserable little woman you may happen to know who rarely has five cents for car fare and never money enough to admit of her making the smallest purchase unless her husband goes with her.

The sarcastic nagger is another type.

He doesn't look after the kitchen, and is often a man with many good qualities, but he thinks it is clever to ridicule everything his wife says or does or wears, and his idea of brilliant wit is to indulge in a continuous recital, with many a loud laugh interpolated, of his wife's blunders.

His existence appears to be one merry jest at his wife's expense. And what that little woman suffers no pen can describe.

Then there is the fuss-and-feathers nagger—the husband who fidgets away his own life and wears the soul out of his wife.

He never is satisfied with his seat in a car.

He fusses with the waiter at the hotel or restaurant.

If he goes to the theater he rows at the box-office, and has an altercation with the usher.

He holds lengthy arguments with every one he has to do with.

Every bill presented to him sounds the clarion note for a protest, and tradesmen grow to dread his wife's custom.

He raises windows when they are closed, closes them when they are raised, is cold when the rest of the world perspires and finds it stifling in a car or public room when other people are sneezing.

The little woman who looks at you from the breakfast table is the sweetheart of your honeymoon.

I just want to say to the gentlemen of the nagging fraternity:

If you want your wives to remain young and charming don't worry them into wrinkles and faces expressive of despair by nagging them.

If you want your wives to look and to be happy, bright, sweet and beautiful women, don't treat them as though they were babies or idiots.

Don't drown the memory of your wedding bells by an endless fuss and clatter about trifles.

Don't forget that the little woman who looks at you from the breakfast table, and whose whole day you make happy or miserable by a smile or frown, is the sweetheart of your honeymoon.

Don't nag, please, my lords and gentlemen, don't nag!

HARRIET HUBBARD AYER.

THE PULITZER SCHOLARSHIPS.

AN admirable expression of the democratic ideal in education is in Joseph Pulitzer's Free Scholarships. The ambitious schoolboys whose parents are poor place their hopes in them; all sincere students are interested in them.

Before Mr. Pulitzer initiated them, ten years ago, pupils in the public school class evoked images of vials in which the teachers poured science, and the adverse critics said, "It is as if it were necessary that physicians and cobblers should know the same things."

Mr. Pulitzer had a retort to that prepared. He wrote: "My special object is to help the poor. The rich can help themselves. My injunction against favoritism must, therefore, be understood as admitting of favoritism to the poor. I believe in self-made men, but it is not the aim of this plan to help people for ordinary money-making purposes. College education is not needed for that. There are nobler purposes in life, and my hope is not that these scholarships will make better butchers, bakers, brokers and bank cashiers, but that they will help to make teachers, scholars, physicians, authors, journalists, judges, lawyers and statesmen.

"They certainly ought to increase, not diminish, the number of those who, under our free institutions, rise from the humbliest to the highest positions. I have not entered upon this scheme without careful thought. It was a dream of my youth. It is the conviction of experience.

"I shall be happy indeed if it should, even to the smallest degree, relieve poverty, aid the cause of education and lift into a higher plane of citizenship and usefulness to the State, children of the poor, who, in spite of talent, without such education and great hardship, cannot compete for the nobler prizes of an intellectual career."

The scheme, detailed to the City Superintendent of Schools in a letter, dated May 21, 1889, was to give to 12 boys—chosen among the graduates of the grammar schools—$250 a year each, during their five years' course in the College of the City of New York, or any other college that a committee designated.

The graduate of the grammar school went to college, developed his general knowledge, acquired the perception of his particular faculties, of his individuality, and found himself incapable—in the lack of money, in the lack of ability to earn money—helpless at the threshold of his career.

The remedy was applied immediately. Mr. Pulitzer gave an endowment fund of $100,000 to Columbia University. By the terms of it 20 elect among the grammar school graduates receive free tuition in the preparatory high school and the collegiate courses of the university every year.

The preparatory studies are in the Horace Mann School. They take three or four years, in the course of which each elect under the scholarship received $750. At the end of it he may go to a college that he has chosen and receive $250 a year, or enter Columbia University—the School of Arts, Mines or Law—and receive free tuition, besides $250 a year.

Since 1893 this new system of Joseph Pulitzer's free scholarships has been in triumphal operation. A committee, composed of W. H. Merrill, representing Mr. Pulitzer; Virgil Prettyman, principal of the Horace Mann High School, and Joseph J. Kittel, member of the Board of Education, has the task of selecting the candidates.

Joseph Pulitzer's free scholarships are a triumph of the democratic ideal in education.

Some persons affect surprise because Gov. Roosevelt didn't give civil service reform a boost in his Akron speech. Roosevelt has retired from the civil service reform business. There is nothing in it for Roosevelt.

Dewey's Home Coming.

From the Jerseyville (Ill.) Democrat.

The Democrat arranged with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to have it wired here as soon as it was known, that Dewey had arrived off Sandy Hook. At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning the wire was received at this office and the town celebrated the arrival of the hero in a fitting manner. The Democrat fired an Admiral salute of 17 guns, using cannon crackers, as they were the nearest to a cannon of anything in town. Others also gave the salute, and Mayor Shephard ordered the engineer at the waterworks to blow the Admiral salute on the whistle. Many houses decorated their buildings. Every one is glad to welcome the brave home

"The Exposition of 1903."

From the St. Louis Furniture News.

Under the above caption the New York Commercial says editorially:

"The States of the Mississippi Valley are getting ready to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase. An exposition is to be held at St. Louis in 1903 which, its promoters declare, will be equal in breadth and scope to the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. Fourteen States have been carved out of the Louisiana Purchase since the genius of Thomas Jefferson caused him to buy all that territory. * * * But for the acquisition of this imperial domain American authority to-day would extend very little beyond the Alleghenies, whereas it reaches from the mid-Atlantic to the South Seas. That the Exposition referred to will be a success we cannot doubt. The people who live in what was the Louisiana Territory are red-blooded. Pioneers and sons of pioneers, they have converted a wilderness into a garden, and have builded temples where architecture found its highest form in Indian tepees. Four years of preparation will make them masters of the situation, and if those who attend their World's Fair are not amply requited we shall be very much mistaken."

We reproduce the above to show our readers that the outside world has taken us at our word, and that now St. Louis has nothing to do but go ahead and redeem her promise. As intimated by Mr. J. W. Vandeave, one of St. Louis' leading and ablest business men, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch, whatever may have been our individual opinion of the wisdom of making the promise, the fact is, "we have made it," and as with St. Louis "nothing is impossible," the promise must be redeemed in a manner to reflect honor upon the citizens of the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley and of the Louisiana Purchase. But while honor is much to our citizens, it is not all. Advancement of the city's industries and material benefit to her people, more especially her workers, her producers, is also of vital importance, and as it is now an assured fact that the Exposition is to be held, the more successful it is the more benefit it will be to the city and its inhabitants. And the more united we are in its support the more successful it will be. As the growth and prosperity of all cities, or States, or countries, depends largely upon united effort, so the success of our Exposition depends upon the unanimity displayed by our citizens in its support. Individual selfishness should be obliterated and communal good our only aim

SPORTS OF THE DAY

NEW PACING WONDER.

LITTLE BOY PERFORMS GRANDLY OVER FAIR GROUNDS TRACK.

WEDNESDAY'S PROGRAMME.

It Includes Two Pacing and One Trotting Race, All Three of Which Are Well Filled.

The harness horse meeting in connection with the St. Louis Fair was commenced on the mile track at the Fair Grounds Tuesday afternoon and some pretty trotting and pacing was seen by the fair sized crowd in attendance.

In the 2:14 pace a new wonder in the harness horse world was developed in Little Boy.

Although getting off badly in the first two heats and being practically left at the post in the third heat he came away at the end and won the race in three straight heats.

The watches held on him in the last heat showed that he had paced his mile in 2:08½ and the middle half of the mile in 1:01.

Little Boy is a handsome dark bay gelding by Kenton who bids fair to rank with the top notchers in the pacing world before very long.

The three minute trot went to Douglas Thomas' Corinne in three straight heats.

In the 2.28 trot A. Tullis' Alit also won in three straight heats.

A fine day's sport is promised lovers of the harness horses on the mile track at the Fair Grounds Wednesday afternoon. The events and entries are:

2:30 pace—J. W. Thomas' r. g. Billie Long, Glasscock & Thomas' br. g. Gus Hornet, F. D. Waugh's b. g. Fred Wilton, E. L. Housh's g. g. Joe Conway, E. J. Marvin's Arthur W., E. E. Tesson's b. g. THE RUGBY SEASON.

IT WILL BE COMMENCED IN REAL EARNEST SATURDAY.

The local Rugby football season will be commenced in real earnest next Saturday afternoon when the St. Louis High School boys will cross the river and meet the East St. Louis High School team on the latter's own grounds.

The game should be no more than exercise gallop for the city boys.

Heretofore the second team has always been able to dispose of the lads across the river. So there is no reason to suppose the first will not do likewise.

Smith Academy's first game will be with the redoubtable West Ends, the team that played High Scontrol of its standstill. Allowing for the consequent improvement, particularly after such a hard game, the West Ends will come dangerously near beating Smith, if they do not actually do it. They outweigh the school team considerably and their individual experience is much greater—two vastly important factors in a football game. The match will occur, probably, at the old P. A. C. grounds, in De Hodiamont, on Saturday, Oct. 14.

Neither Manual Training School nor St. Louis University will open their season before the Interscholastic League's schedule begins. Washington University will play a practice game with Smith Academy in the near future. Under Capt. Dillon's really fine direction the 'Varsity men are rapidly assuming fighting shape and presently Coach Bager will take hold. Then a line can be secured on the team's true merit.

WITH THE CRICKETERS.

On Big Thursday of this Week Local Elevens Will Play in Forest Park.

Big Thursday of this week is the corresponding time to the "Hastings Week" in England, and will be the last chance that the members of the St. Louis Cricket will have of improving their averages. At 2 o'clock sharp Thursday there will be a game played between crack teams. One will be captained by the veteran cricketer Charles W. Irish who holds the enviable record of having made the biggest score ever made against a foreign team. On his side will be the following well known players: Julian Crutwell, Jim Wilson, Fred Ward, A. C. Vercoe (commonly called "the monocle wicket keeper"), H. P. Farrington and others. Dr. Murray will captain the other side, and will be assisted by several cracks who are all well up in the averages. The full team will be:

C. W. Irish's Side—	Dr. Murray's Side—
C. W. Irish, capt.	Dr. Murray, capt.,
J. Crutwell,	F. W. Ratcliff,
J. Wilson,	Joe Fletcher,

Saturday's game at Forest Park simply served to illustrate the batting propensities of Dr. Murray and the Rev. E. Duckworth, both modestly retiring after scoring 50 runs each. Mr. Dundas Simpson acquired the distinction of hitting a ball for six—the first time. This feat has never been accomplished in St. Louis. The ball was bowled from the top end by Mr. Duckworth and driven hard to the off, landing about 40 yards outside the northwest corner of the ground and traveling rapidly toward the site of the old restaurant. The distance from the wicket to where the ball stopped was 123 yards.

SHARKEY'S CHANCES.

SOME THINK THE SAILOR PUGILIST WILL DEFEAT JEFFRIES.

BOTH MEN NOW HARD AT WORK.

Tim Callahan, the Philadelphia Featherweight, Is Going to Give Johnnie Richie Another Chance.

The sailor pugilist, Tom Sharkey, and the champion pugilist of the world, Jim Jeffries, are now both in training for their battle for the championship of the world, which is to take place in New York the latter part of this month.

Jeffries is at his old quarters at Asbury Park, while Sharkey is at New Dorp, L. I.

From all accounts this will sure enough be a battle between well-trained giants and neither man is to have a walkover.

Sharkey is said to be in the best condition he has ever been in for a prize battle. He is said to be thoroughly hardened. He is also reported to have lost much of his awkwardness. He was badly muscle-bound when he began to box. But now he surprises the clever men who spar with him by his shiftiness.

Sharkey believes in hard work. He boxes long and hard. He runs, wrestles, punches the bag and is in motion from the get-up bell to good night.

Jeffries and his manager, Billy Brady, are confident of an easy victory. Sharkey and his manager, Tom O'Rourke, are quite as certain of winning. But there will be hustling in both camps until the day of the fight.

Charley Daly, once St. Louis' crack light weight boxer, and who has seen all the big fights, thinks that this time Sharkey will win. "Take the records of the men," said Daly, "and you will see that Sharkey has the best. True, Jeffries is the biggest man of the two, but Sharkey weighs 185, and a man of that weight is heavy enough for all practical purposes. Beside that, Sharkey set his heart on winning this fight a long while ago and has trained for it as he never did before. Jeffries, on the other hand, has been taking things easy and has only commenced to get in condition. Of course, at that he may win. But if he does, he will surprise me."

A St. Louisan who has picked the winner in every battle for the heavy weight championship since the days Sullivan licked Paddy Ryan at Mississippi City, Miss., says that this time a ring will go around Sharkey's name.

When Jeffries was here this summer he was asked what he thought of his chances with Sharkey. He said then:

"I licked him when I knew nothing about boxing and when I had nothing to depend on but my strength. Now that I am a finished boxer I think I ought to get away with him easily."

Tim Hurst who is coming here to referee the Martin Flaherty and Tommy Hogan glove contest which is to take place at the Fourteenth Street Theater next Monday night, is expected in St. Louis on Thursday morning.

The St. Louis Athletic Club propose opening up business on Monday night with a boom.

Several rattling preliminary bouts will take place before the 20-round bout between Hogan and Flaherty.

The new club has fitted up its gymnasium in fine style and now claims to have the best equipped gymnasium and club in the West.

Wednesday night is the time set for the 20-round bout between Steve Flanagan and Casper Leon, for the bantamweight championship of the world. Flanagan has never been defeated and in him Leon, for the first time in many a day, promises to meet a foeman in every way worthy of his steel. Joe Stewart has been agreed on by both men as referee.

TIPS FROM THE TURF.

Starter Billy Bruen Returns from His Holiday Trip East.

Starter Billy Bruen got home from the East on Tuesday and was at the Fair Grounds in the afternoon looking at the trotters.

"The racing game is booming in the East," said Billy. "I put in four weeks around New York and spent nearly every afternoon at the track. The one thing that attracted my attention more than anything else was the mile turf track at Sheepshead Bay. The regular course there is a mile and an eighth. This makes the inner turf course just a mile, and two races a day of the regular programme are run over it. The inner course is like a piece of green velvet, and the horses running over the grass do not seem to leave a mark.

"While I was East I saw Fitzgerald's starting severely criticized, but I considered his work first-class and thought the abuse showered on him uncalled for.

"I met many St. Louisans at the Eastern tracks. Billy Sullivan and the Fletcher boys, Pat and Billy, are there with their handicap books and all are prospering.

"Yes, I saw the Dewey parade. Imagine a crowd of millions pushing you along and a procession which showed uniforms of every color of the rainbow and men of all sizes and country, and you will have some idea of the parade. No one of this generation will ever live to see its like again."

There will be a great race at Morris Park on Thursday when the Bronx-Highweight Handicap, last six furlongs of the Withers straight mile course will be run. The race will bring together all the high-class horses of the year, as will be seen from the following weights:

There will be horses enough at the Latonia meeting, but it looks as though bookmakers would be needed there badly.

Vistas Baseball Club.

The Vistas Football Club has organized for the season under the management of their star forward, L. Schanzman. They would like to hear from all teams in the 11 and 12 year old class. Address challenges to T. Gunn, 3158 Park avenue.

Southwestern Football League.

The Southwestern Football League has decided to admit the strong Compton's instead of the Edgewoods. A meeting will be held at 3109 South Grand avenue, Friday night, and the season's schedule will be arranged. The league is composed of the Comptons, champions of the 16-year-old class, the Tower Groves and Blue Ridges of the old South Side League, and the Grands, the greatwhale champions of all South St. Louis.

Where They Play.

Pittsburg at St. Louis.
Louisville at Chicago.
New York at Boston.
Brooklyn at Washington.
Philadelphia at Baltimore.

The Pittsburgs won another game from St. Louis at League Park on Tuesday afternoon and appeared to have little trouble doing it.

The final score was 9 to 6, and the visitors acted as though they might have done even better than that had they cared to.

Once St. Louis was four runs ahead of Pittsburg, but the Smoky City aggregation did not seem to mind that, but went on and evened up matters, and after doing that took the bit in their teeth and then ran away with the game.

The Pittsburg team as it appears to-day is a very quiet, unassuming aggregation. "Saw wood and say nothing" appears to be the motto of Donovan's new crowd, and they go along without saying a word, play ball and get there beautifully.

Smith, their new second baseman, may make an error occasionally, but he uses good judgment in fielding and running the bases, and he appears to have the knack of getting in a good stroke when it is needed. Fred Ely, too, is playing great ball these days, his fielding resembling the gilt-edged work he put up with the Browns three years ago. Williams is not only a great third baseman, but he is a cracker jack at the bat and he was cheered nearly every time he went to the plate on Tuesday.

The St. Louis Club is not putting up its usual good game these days. Donlin in the last two games has not covered his position as well as he can cover it, and Wallace's work has not been as clean as it was in the games of the early season. Childs, too, is badly missed at second base, although Flood has covered that place well, considering that he is having his first experience in the big League, and that he is handicapped with a very sore hand.

The homeless Cleveland Club, whose future is enveloped in darkness, has only six more games scheduled. They are to play at Chicago next Sunday and at Cincinnati the Sunday following. Oct. 7, 9 and 10 they are to play the Pittsburgs at Cleveland. Their season will end at Cincinnati on Sunday, Oct. 15.

When Rube Waddell on Monday last helped the Louisvlles win a game from the Chicagos by a score of 6 to 1, he pitched the most sensational game of the season, and incidentally broke this year's record for strike-outs. In an eight-inning game, this talkative wonder struck out thirteen men, and held the Chicago "sluggers" down to three lonely singles, two of which were rank scratches. During the game he kept up a running conversation with the occupants of the bleachers and the grand stand; and at the close of the contest he gave an impromptu exhibition of ground and lofty tumbling, which was unique, to say the least. The "rube" is a tall, deep-chested, long-armed country boy who, during his career on the village green, picked up a varied assortment of curves, drops and speeders. In addition to this, he has as good an arm and almost as much speed as Amos Rusie. For a youngster, he has fair control, and if he can only gain confidence, rather exuberant spirits and use his head he will undoubtedly prove the pitching find of the year. The best proof of the talent of this rugged and talkative "phenom" is in the impressive way in which he disposed of the very best batters in the Chicago aggregation.

The first three men up in the first inning, namely, Green, Lange and Everett, were struck out in succession.

In the second inning after two men were out, one by the way, on strikes, the "rube" lost control of the ball and sent Magoon and Donahue to first on gifts. But then he quickly settled to his work again, and in the third again struck out Green and Lange in succession.

THE MOTOR MACHINE RACE.

The Three Teams Who Are to Compete on Thursday Now in St. Louis.

The race between the three motor machines, ridden by Cyclists Miller and Judge, Pierce and Stone and Waller and Stafford, will take place over the track in Athletic Park on Thursday afternoon.

On Monday morning the third motor cycle arrived from Chicago.

Johnnie Nelson and Johnnie Lake, the amateur champion pace followers, accompanied it with their trainers, and in the afternoon were at the track, back of the motor machines.

The Miller-Judge outfit will pace Lake, while Stone and Pierce will carry Johnnie Nelson along.

The local rider, Mark Erskine, will follow the Waller team, which yesterday placed a mile to its credit in 1:35, the fastest mile by 17 seconds ever ridden in Missouri.

Waller and Stafford tore round the track at a frightful gait and said when they finished that the Athletic Park track was faster by many seconds than they had anticipated. At the outset the motor men complained of a too rapid drop into the homestretch from the upper bank, but steady training has overcome this.

The mile by Waller and Stafford yesterday has made this team a prominent choice for the race. Miller says himself that such time gives Waller a far better chance. Miller will wager a goodly amount, though, that he will win, and Stone and Pierce feel that they, too, have an excellent show.

Yesterday, at the track, Champion Miller related stories of some of the races this season in the East, and told with glee of one win by a length over Fournier and Stevenson at Baltimore. Miller gave it as his opinion that no team would have a runaway in this 20-mile race, and predicted one of the hardest races of the season for this, the first meeting, of the three teams.

Post-Dispatch Record Broken.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—William H. Stubbs, a compositor on the Baltimore Sun, broke the world's record for machine typesetting in a contest for a wager of $450 a side, with William Duffy of the Philadelphia Inquirer. The contest was held in the Philadelphia Times office. Stubbs set 66 617 ems in 5 hours and 25 minutes, or an average of 11,940 ems an hour. Duffy set 55,026 ems in 5 hours and 23 minutes. The previous record was 10 800 ems an hour, made in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch office four years ago.

MILLIONS OF MEN

HAVE BEEN WRECKED ON THE ROCK OF SEXUAL VICE.

(W. A. COOK, M. D.)

I make no extravagant assertion when I say that millions of men have been wrecked on the rock of sexual vice. The trouble is not so much that they get disease, but rather that they allow it grow worse through neglect or improper treatment.

You should remember that sexual diseases are never on the standstill. Neither can you make any compromise with them. Either you must control them or they will control you and render you utterly unfit for the ordinary duties and pleasures of life.

Electric Belts, Specifics, Free Samples, Trial Treatments, Electro-Medical combinations and the like don't cure complaints of this kind, as any one who has tried them knows.

But if you have Varicocele, Stricture, Contagious Blood Poison, Nervo-Sexual Debility, or any associate disease or weakness, you owe it to yourself to fully and freely investigate my treatment. My mastery of these maladies is complete. I began a special study of them soon after graduating from college, now over a quarter of a century ago, and during all the years since then they have constituted my entire practice. I treat nothing else.

Does it not occur to you, then, that I am better prepared to combat and conquer diseases and weaknesses peculiar to men than the general practitioner who, instead of concentrating his faculties on a single class of diseases, scatters them over the entire field of medicine and surgery?

NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY OF MEN.

Many of you are now reaping the result of your former folly. Your manhood is failing, and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Impotency, like all sexual diseases, is never on the standstill. With it you can make no compromise. Either you must master it or it will master you, and fill your whole future with misery and indescribable woe. I have treated so many cases of this kind that I am as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by me, you will never again be bothered with emissions, drains, prematureness, small or weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or other symptoms which rob you of your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. My treatment for weak men will correct all these evils, and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, healthy, happy man, with physical, mental and sexual powers complete.

SYPHILITIC BLOOD POISON CURED.

On account of its frightful hideousness, Syphilis is commonly called the king of all venereal diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these or similar symptoms, you are cordially invited to consult me immediately. If I find your fears are unfounded I will quickly unburden your mind. But if your constitution is infected with syphilitic virus I will tell you so frankly, and show you how to get rid of it. My special treatment for Syphilis is practically the result of my life work, and is indorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom of Syphilis disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

VARICOCELE AND ITS NEW CURE.

Whatever may be the cause of varicocele, its injurious effects are too well known for extended comment. Suffice to say that it depresses the mind, weakens the body, racks the nervous system, and ultimately leads to a complete loss of sexual power. If you are a victim of this disease come to my office and let me explain to you my process of treating it. Under my treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly ceases. Soreness and swelling quickly subside. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly assume their normal size and soundness. All indications of disease and weakness vanish completely, and in their stead come the pride, the power and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

ALL ASSOCIATE DISEASES ARE CURED.

In curing a disease of any kind I never fail to remove all reflex complications. If the case is Varicocele, the weakness caused by it disappears. If it is Stricture, and has developed into Prostatic, Bladder or Kidney affections, the injured organs are all restored to a perfectly healthful condition. If it is Syphilis, any and all Skin, Blood and bone diseases arising from the taint are entirely and permanently eliminated from the system. If it is Impotency, the many distressing symptoms following in its train and indicating a premature decline of physical, mental and sexual power are totally removed and rapidly replaced by the youthful energy of robust manhood. Hence all resulting ills and reflex complications, which may be properly termed associate diseases, and which, by the way, are often more serious than the original ailment that gives rise to them—all, I say, disappear completely and forever with the cure of the main malady.

STRICTURE PAINLESSLY REMOVED.

It matters not how long you have suffered from Stricture, nor how many different doctors have disappointed you, I will cure you just as certainly as you come to me for treatment. I will not do it by cutting or dilating. My treatment is new, entirely original with me, and perfectly painless. It completely dissolves the Stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage. It stops every unnatural discharge, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses the bladder and kidneys, invigorates the sexual organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

HOME TREATMENT BY MAIL.

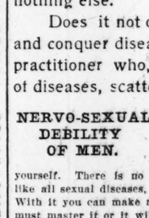

Most cases can be treated successfully at home. One personal visit is preferred, but if it is impossible or inconvenient for you to call at my office write me a full and unreserved history of your case, plainly stating your symptoms. Physicians having stubborn cases are cordially invited to consult me. I charge nothing for private counsel, and give to each patient a legal contract in writing to hold for my promise. ickens shown this year are plumage. There is one on exhibition with a crest 15 inches across.

The show of pheasants is larger than ever before. W. Hauschult has on exhibition for the first time in this country a pair of Swinhoe pheasants imported from Belgium. They are beautiful birds with blue velvet plumage and long tails. Hauschult also shows golden and Lady Amherst pheasants. George Reif's golden pheasants are on exhibition, and so are the two hybrids produced by President Aull by crossing a red game hame bantam and a golden pheasant. Superintendent Colborne says the hybrids will not breed.

In front of the poultry house there are several incubators and bone cutters that breeders find interesting.

The cattle show in the Arena, which was postponed from Monday on account of the failure of some of the herds to arrive, pleased the populace. Fine lots of Jerseys, Holsteins and Herefords were shown. One big Hereford bull tried to make trouble, but his escort subdued him without much exertion. This was no reflection on the bull, as the ring in his nose puts him at a disadvantage.

The exhibition of saddlers was exceptionally good, and as the galted steeds racked, cantered, trotted or walked around the arena they and their riders were applauded vigorously. During the show of geldings, 4 years old and over, a horseman from Chicago said: "I remember the first horse show held in Chicago. The best horse there was not as good by a great many points as the worst here, yet there is a variation of 50 points in the horses here. That shows how the breed has improved. Grand as these horses are, 1000 others in the United States are just as good."

Speaking of horses, there is a 2-year-old son of Rex MacDonald, out of a black squirrel mare, that will probably be heard of in future. He is named Rex Blees and is owned by John T. Donovan of St. Joseph. He is a chestnut with a blaze face, formed very much like his sable sire. Col. John T. Hughes said of the colt: "He's the finest looking youngster I ever saw. His owner made a mistake in entering him in the harness ring Monday. That was not his class."

The saddle ring for geldings four years old and over had eleven entries, and gave the judges a lot of trouble, about seven of the horses being pretty evenly matched. The Frenchman, C. F. Naegel's saddler was given the blue ribbon; Red Bud the second prize and Judge Wilson the third. If it had been left to a vote of the spectators it is probable that Judge Wilson, a dashing gray from Boone County, would have been first.

QUEEN OF THE BALL

MISS ELLEN WALSH DESCRIBES HER SENSATIONS.

A GREAT SOCIETY GATHERING.

Veiled Prophet's Pageant Followed by a Dance, in Which the Gay World Participated.

The excitement caused by the elaborate preparations for the Veiled Prophet's ball has not died down, and Wednesday the fine world was bubbling over with the spirit of good-will born at the greatest of annual social celebrations in St. Louis.

Everybody is delighted over Miss Ellen

After the Ball!

Walsh's triumph and no one is disappointed or envious. The queen could not have been better chosen, nor could the Prophet have gained more in popularity by pleasing so well the thousands of guests present.

This is Miss Walsh's first real season in society, although she did attend a number of ultra-fashionable entertainments last year. She is young, exceedingly lovely and a great favorite in the smart set. Her mother, who was formerly Miss Dickson, was the most popular girl in St. Louis society from the year of her debut until her marriage, two years later. Her father, Mr. Julius S. Walsh, is universally respected and admired and warmly liked by his scores of friends in business and social circles.

And little Miss Walsh seems to inherit all her mother's wit and simplicity of manner, with her father's dignity and courtliness, as well as the capacity of both parents for making friends.

Tuesday night was the first time Miss Walsh had ever attended one of the Veiled Prophet's balls.

"Of course I went out quite a great deal last year," she said to one of the Post-Dispatch staff, "but never to such an exciting sort of performance. I don't believe I could tell you an earthly thing of what took place before the coronation. I only know that there was a dizzying, confusing sea of faces all round me and that everybody was talking at once, with the band assisting in the general tumult. Somebody or other kept telling me not to forget this and that, and I was trying to take in everything at once, including the music and the decorations around the throne—with the result that I didn't see or hear a thing.

"I'm afraid I felt rather wobbly when I

"Late this morning again?"
"Yes, but I went to the ball, you know!"

marched up to be crowned, and I distinctly remember stepping on my own skirt, but of course you need not tell that.

"How did I feel when the mysterious Personage in the chiffon front-piece put the crown on my head? Why, I wondered if it was on straight, of course. I had a horror of being made a queen on the bias—having my crown cocked over one eye, you know. I expected it to fall off any minute, so after the 'operation' was over, I kept as still as a mouse until I found an opportunity to settle it more firmly. And then—oh! I felt like a new man. Like an invalid gaining consciousness after a delirium. I was so pleased to discover that I was really awake that I began to enjoy myself thoroughly. It was certainly a relief to realize that I was not wandering hopelessly through one of these 'Hanlon's Superba' dreams where thousand dollar beauties and horrible bogies mingle in hopeless confusion, and awful faces with huge fiery eyes and things grin out of every corner.

"After the crowd stopped looking at me and began to be interested in itself and each other and all that, I was all right. And when the band began to play a dreamy sort of waltz, of course, I was dying to hop right down off that lofty throne concern and 'be a child again just for to-night.' You know how it—but no; mayoe you weren't ever a queen.

"It's great fun, and makes you feel very grand and important, but you can't help wishing about 49 times a minute (until the coronation) that it was somebody else.

"Did you see Carrie Cook? She was the most beautiful creature I ever saw and I heard a great many people say she was the handsomest girl there. But all the girls were looking their best, I believe, for I don't remember of ever having seen so many lovely faces. I enjoyed it immensely and I was genuinely sorry when it was all over. But one can't be made a queen every day in the week, you know, so I'm going to try to accustom myself to being merely Ellen Walsh, and assisting at an occasional tea party. Have one of these roses? Please do."

MISS ELLEN WALSH, QUEEN OF THE BALL.

A BRILLIANT SOCIAL SUCCESS.

Both the Parade and the Ball Were Peculiarly Pleasing.

St. Louis arose late Wednesday morning and looked retrospectively at the Veiled Prophet's parade and ball.

The parade was gorgeous, the ball brilliant and the annual fete was an entire success.

The parade was sent over the advertised route on time. Delays were not as numerous as in former years and the head of the procession arrived at the Merchants' Exchange shortly before 10:30.

The ballroom was crowded to its capacity when the Prophet and his retinue entered. The gallery was filled. The attendance could scarcely have been greater.

Miss Ellen Humphreys Walsh was made queen of the ball. Of course, Miss Walsh was selected as queen some time ago by the managers of the ball, but it was in the Prophet play for the Veiled Visitor to publicly proclaim Miss Walsh the sovereign of society, to rule until the next Veiled Prophet's ball. If there shall be no next V. P. ball Miss Walsh will remain queen for life.

The queen's maids were Misses Bertha Townsend, Claire Ewing and Carry Scott.

FEW ACCIDENTS AT PARADE.

Capt. McNamee's Horse Fell, Inflicting a Sprained Ankle.

Ample preparations were made at the City Dispensary to handle all accidents that might occur during the Veiled Prophet's parade. All the physicians and ambulances were on duty and all the ambulances and drivers were in service.

But there were fewer accidents than ever before on such an occasion and there was little to do.

Capt. McNamee's horse fell at Twelfth and Olive Streets while he was at the head of the parade. The officer was momentarily in a perilous position, but escaped with a sprained ankle. The other accidents were of a minor nature.

FREE HELP FOR WEAK MEN

"CALTHOS"

Prof. Laborde's Marvelous French Cure for Lost Manhood

FIVE DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT

Sent Absolutely Free by Sealed Mail To All Sufferers.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

The only preparation known to science which really cures Lost Manhood is "CALTHOS," the marvelous French remedy discovered by Prof. Jules Laborde. It is controlled in this country by The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a concern which occupies a high and honorable place in the world of medicine. It is one of the largest and most responsible houses in Cincinnati, as anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

The Von Mohl Company invites all men suffering from Lost Manhood, Spermatorrhœa, Varicocele, Small Parts or Weakness of any nature in the Nerves or Sexual Organs, to send their names and receive a five days' treatment. This will prove the wonderful vitalizing powers of "CALTHOS." After using it five days the sufferers will find new vigor in their organs, new force in their muscles, new blood in their veins, new ambition, and rapid progress toward the buoyant feelings and sensations of younger days.

This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swindling C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme connected with it. The five days' treatment is sent by sealed mail to all on request, wrapped in a plain package, and full printed instructions accompany the medicine, so that each patient becomes his own doctor and cures himself at home.

It doesn't make any difference what caused the weakness—whether bad habits in youth, or excess, or overwork, or business troubles. "CALTHOS" will effect a cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in perfect confidence. Under no conditions will it make public the names of the thousands who have written testimonials telling of their restoration to robust manhood after other medicines and appliances have proved worthless. "CALTHOS" is regularly used in the French and German armies, and the soldiers in those countries have come to be perfect models of strength and vitality. Cures are effected at all ages from twenty to eighty years. There is no case (except where the stage of epilepsy or insanity has been reached) which it will not radically, quickly and permanently cure. Sexual weakness does not cure itself. It grows worse from week to week. Each day aggravates the mental and physical anguish.

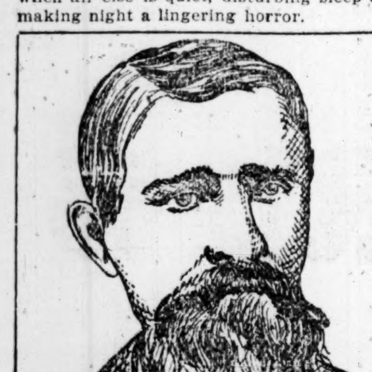

Send today for the free five days' trial treatment. If it helps you, more of the medicine can be purchased. If it does not help, no harm is done and no money has been paid out. You can send your name in the full knowledge that it will be kept from all. The "CALTHOS" department of our business is strictly confidential. Address applications for trial treatment, etc., to

RINGING NOISES IN THE EARS.

The Free Week Applies to Them, as to All Forms of Ear Disease and Deafness.

In very many cases ringing noises precede deafness, and in the majority of all cases of Deafness they are present; their character is either intermittent or constant, and they vary from the low humming sounds, up to all the different varieties of sounds, almost always unpleasant or horrible, to that of the loudest explosion. Occasionally they take the form of the ringing of bells, again they are like the hiss of escaping steam, again like the buzzing of bees, again like the roar of a waterfall, again like the discharge of a gun—and so on, in almost infinite variety. Occasionally they are present only during the day, but frequently they become worse at night when all else is quiet, disturbing sleep and making night a lingering horror.

Doctor Joseph Z. Scott, Bristow, Ind. Ter., states that he has been cured of Deafness under the Copeland Home Treatment.

Now nearly all cases of ringing noises are due to some interference with this tube, the eustachian tube, which leads from the throat to the inner side of the ear drum, and any stoppage or closing up, or any swelling or disease of any sort that results in partial or complete closing of this tube will cause Tinnitus Aurium.

Ringing noises, or sounds imprisoned within the head, either indicate a condition that has already resulted in impaired hearing, or they show that the hearing is going to fail in a short time. In other words, ringing noises are forerunners of lost hearing, harbingers often of total Deafness.

As the presence of ringing in the ears gives warning of approaching Deafness, so its disappearance indicates the passing away of the condition that causes the Deafness.

Many persons under treatment have noticed that the sounds in their heads cease a little time before the sense of hearing returns. The patient can have absolute confidence in during the treatment of ear troubles, namely, that whenever the treatment has gained an influence over the head noises, be that influence ever so small, it but diminishes the sounds a trifle, if it changes the character of the sounds in any way, it gives hope, for it is almost a certain sign that the restoration of the hearing or at least a marked improvement in the hearing, will take place within a reasonable length of time.

The First Seven Days Medicine and Treatment Are Given Away.

This offer of all treatment and all medicine for the first week, the initial week, the first seven days, ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT PAY OR OBLIGATION TO PAY, EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED, applies not only to treatment for Deafness and Ringing Noises, but to all the countless sick and suffering.

Patients living at a distance from St. Louis and unable to come to the office may have the free week's treatment and medicines sent to them by writing for it.

MAJ. BURKE'S BLUFF.

HOW THE VETERAN GOT HIS NAME ON THE MAP.

PICKED OUT THE SPOT HIMSELF.

Now He Wants to Be Buried There and Has Mentioned the Fact in His Life Insurance Policy.

Major John M. Burke, the veteran manager of the Buffalo Bill show, sat in the lobby of the Southern Hotel Wednesday morning and regaled a party of friends with stories of Western frontier life.

In the midst of a startling yarn he paused and said: "I'd rather tell how I got my name on the map of the United States. That marked the big epoch in my history.

"It was 15 years ago. At the time I was passing the summer on Col. Cody's ranch in Wyoming. In the State there is a valley known as the Big Horn Basin. It is miles in circumference and as pretty a spot as nature ever created.

"Near the center is McCullough's Peak. No matter from what point the valley is approached, you see McCullough's Peak.

"Well, we were coming through there one day and I was asking the stage driver the names of the different points of interest. I found that almost every Tom, Dick and Harry in the surrounding community had some clump or other called after him. To be similarly honored was he ambition of my life. Eventually we came to a large bluff, which led up to the Peak.

"'What's that?' I asked.

"'Oh,' replied the driver, 'that's just a bluff.'

"'Then call it Burke's Bluff after this,' I exclaimed. A good swig of liquid ammunition, and he agreed.

"The next year Burke's Bluff was printed in the Atlas. Now, when I die I want to be buried there and to make sure there won't be any mistake, I have had that wish mentioned in a supplement to my life insurance policy."

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Lower cables and higher English consols reflecting an easier feeling in regard to the South African situation, the wheat market here opened dull and easier, ⅛@⅝c under yesterday's close. Liverpool followed the local decline of Tuesday, with a drop of ⅞d. December opened at 72⅝@73¼c, advanced to 73¼@73⅝c and fell to 73⅛c. Northwest receipts were 926 cars, as compared with 799 last week and 1010 a year ago. Local receipts were 181 cars, five of contract grade.

Corn was quiet, in sympathy with wheat. December opened a shade lower at 30@30⅛c and advanced to 30¼c. The sharp advance in ocean freights has militated against export sales. Local receipts were 680 cars.

Oats were easier, in sympathy with the other cereals. The market was steady at the decline on a fair shipping demand. December opened a shade lower at 23⅛c and rallied to 23⅛@23¼c. Local receipts were 218 cars.

Provisions opened lower, with wheat, and the falling off in hog prices. There was some buying by shorts. January pork opened 2½c lower at $9.75, January lard 2½c under at $5.60@5.62½ and January ribs unchanged to 2½c lower at $5.07½@5.10. These prices ruled for some time.

THE MARKETS.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 4.

On receipt of favorable cable news, the bears took another turn in the control of the market.

Foreign market showed a decided falling off in prices. As a consequence, the markets of this country responded but feebly to the pushes given it by the bulls and the general tone of the early part of the session was decidedly bearish.

An occasional report would bring courage to the bulls, but they were too uncertain regarding the political outlook to try hard to raise prices.

After the first attack made on the market by the bears had to a measure worn off the bulls were able to hold their own better than they had done previously.

The session was in its early hours decidedly interesting, though there were but few changes in price; yet both factions showed their determination to hold their own.

The Weather—Fair to-night and probably Thursday; cooler.

Generally fair weather prevails throughout the country with the exception of light rain in Kansas and Southern Colorado.

The temperature changes were slight and irregular.

NEWS OF THE PIT.

By Wire to William Rooke.

Corn has been quiet, a shade under Tuesday, Comstock took May, others took October. The sharp advance in ocean freights is counting against port sales.

By Wire to A. C. Petri.

I look for a good setback in wheat before it will do to buy again. Corn will also sell lower.

There seems to be wheat and corn for sale.

By Wire to J. W. Sanford.

Market ought to be a buy for a turn on this weak opening.

WHEAT.

The session to-day might be divided into three parts—the exciting, the moderately exciting and the quiet.

The market opened with a slump in the prices of futures, caused by bearish news from the grain centers and the important markets of the world; later the interest in the market was revived by the bulls taking a hand, but in spite of the energy displayed by this faction, in the early part of the session, the bears retained control of the market.

The changes in price were at no time very great, and it was only the unexpected fall in the market at the opening of the session that caused what little excitement there was; this was the exciting period; later there were a few gains made by the bulls, followed by losses forced by the bears that did not change the market much, the moderately exciting period, then there came a period when both factions were contented to rest and allow the market to remain unchanged, the quiet period.

In the early part of the session, after the bears had made their first large gain, the factions fought about equally, though, in spite of bearish news, the bulls would at times gain a little more than the bears, and so there was a generally upward tendency to the market.

The uncertainty of the outlook in England's relations with the Transvaal still had a powerful effect on the market, being one of the prime causes of the falling off in the foreign markets, and hence the cause of the loss on the local market.

The receipts in the Northwest are not falling off any, as they did last week, and the bears still hope for better times than they previously feared. This also has a subduing effect on the bulls, for with an unknown supply of wheat in the West the bulls are very careful about their actions in the grain pit.

December wheat still had the most attention from the pit. Though May was not much slighted, the October future was sadly neglected.

December opened at 74c, a fall of 9-16c since yesterday's close. After the opening the price fell to 73⅞c, but did not remain long at this figure, the bulls getting into the pit and forcing prices back to the opening figure, 74c. Around this point the market hung, uncertain whether to advance or fall. It finally decided on the former course, and rose to 74@74⅛c and then to 74¼c. Here it stopped its upward course and then fell back to 74⅛@74¼c, where it stayed during a great part of the session, with but little gains made by either faction. Towards the end of the session the bears became very confident, being able to force the future down to 73⅞c, and finally to 73⅝c.

May wheat opened early in the session at 78c, being a loss of 1⅛c since the last trade of yesterday, and ⅝c loss since yesterday's close, which was a selling price. After the opening the pit seemed to lose interest in this future and though bid and selling prices were occasionally accorded it there were no sales until late in the session at any figure but the opening.

The falling off in the foreign markets also showed its effect in this May future.

William Rooke's Morning Letter.

Liverpool wheat ¾d lower. When war news once gets possession of a market its constant stimulant is necessary to maintain prices.

Scalping market is looked for in the immediate future.

Demand for spring wheat is not good and stocks are accummulating rapidly.

By Wire to Oswald Graves.

The lower prices registered in America yesterday was the main factor in causing decline in Liverpool's market to-day.

The average weekly consumption of wheat in Liverpool during September was about 800,000, compared with 904,000 the previous month and 900,000 in September, 1898.

Broomhall reckons the season's European requirements at about 360,000,000 bu, and ex-European, 28,000,000, which is practically the same as last season.

A wire from Chicago said:

The Weare elevator yesterday showed only 623,000 bushels contract wheat in their houses, the City, Union, Iowa and Nebraska City. The figures show how slowly the Armour wheat is being moved, for the Armour deliveries began Sept. 1 and the Weare wheat stock has not increased 300,000 bushels in that time. Meantime Armour is getting his ¼c every 10 days and ¾c on each bushel the Weares take out.

The Board of Trade directors have decided to adjourn the Exchange on Monday, Oct. 9, Chicago Day.

By Wire to J. W. Sanford.

New York opened weak, ⅝c off all around for wheat. It was relatively strong yesterday.

Paris close—Wheat unchanged; 10 centimes lower; flour 5 to 20 centimes lower.

Reports from Southeastern Nebraska show that they have had no rain to speak of for the past seven weeks, and the ground is in very bad shape for fall seeding. Very little plowing has been done on account of these conditions. Winter wheat reports from Central Ohio show that fall seeding is not yet completed. A good deal of complaint about wheat not coming up well. Seeding 14 days later than usual.

Reserves of '98 crop pretty well exhausted.

Ocean freight rates have been advanced and will tend to restrict export business unless European markets advance accordingly.

There is practically no demand for cash wheat in Chicago. Stocks are large and receipts promise to be liberal.

Duluth has a large stock of wheat, which is relatively as cheap as Chicago's.

Seaboard stocks have been largely replenished this summer and are adequate to fill the export demand for some time to come. With the large stocks in Chicago, it is expected there will be a heavier carrying charge on May wheat.

Receipts of wheat at primary points to-day were 1,371,215 bu, as compared with 1,944,00 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 449,798 bu, compared with 759,000 bu same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis to-day were 24,302 bu, compared with 91,208 bu same date last year. Of these 801 sacks and 26 cars were local, compared with 1680 sacks and 50 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth to-day were 926 cars, compared with 1010 cars same date last year.

CORN.

The market opened quiet, the futures for a long time failing to receive any attention from the pit.

Cable news was again bearish, and this, together with the large receipts at St. Louis, kept the market in the hands of the bears during the early part of the day's trade, the bulls at no time taking enough interest in this grain to become in any way dangerous.

The opening occurred late in the session, and the rule of the day after that seemed to be bid or selling prices, though not a large number of these were recordd.

Dec. received by far the most attention, opening at 28⅝@28¾c, being 1-16c below yesterday's close. After the opening there were but few sales recorded and the session remained very quiet.

May did not open till late in the session. Prior to the opening 29⅝@¾c was given as a selling price, but at that figure there were no sales.

Liverpool opened ⅛d lower for corn than yesterday's close.

London was a good buyer the first hour. Corn buying dropped after the first purchases and this led to little sagging in prices.

Selling scattering and without suggesting any special sources.

Receipts of corn at primary points to-day were 1,462,144 bu, as compared with 971,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 1,043,417 bu, compared with 640,000 bu same date last year.

Receipts of corn at St. Louis to-day were 100,000 bu, compared with 32,280 bu same date last year. Of these 75 cars were local, compared with 24 cars same date last year.

OATS.

There was little doing in the oats market to-day, the pit almost entirely neglecting this grain.

Wire news was scarce, and not of a character to have any great effect either one way or the other on the market.

The interest in the futures was very evenly divided, as none of them opened till near the close of the session, even bid and selling prices being few and well scattered.

The receipts at the local market were large, in comparison to last year, and naturally had a quieting effect on the market.

Receipts of oats at St. Louis to-day were 42,000 bushels, compared with 14,400 bushels same date last year. Of these 33 cars were local, compared with 11 cars same date last year.

Wall Street.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The recovery in stocks on the London Exchange caused an advance at the opening here. Railroads generally advanced a sharp fraction, but in the case of Norfolk & Western the rise was 1½, and in Louisville a point. A number of the specialties showed gains between 1 and 2 points, including Tobacco, Sugar, Reading first preferred and Tennessee Coal.

The buying movement slackened and there was a gradual setback. The reaction extended to 2½ in Chicago Great Western preferred B, and a point each in Sugar and Tenessee Coal. Railroads in the main held well. There was a sharp rise in New York Air Brake, Pacific Mail, Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred, and Norfolk & Western preferred. Active bidding for Pullman lifted it 7½ to 190½. The list generally rose above the opening level.

Stocks which had made the most headway were realized on. Pullman fell 36, but recovered partly. Substantial losses also occurred in General Electric, Pacific Mail and Tennessee Coal. Sales to noon, 135,146 shares. Higher prices were obtained for bonds, but the demand was light and confined to semi-speculative issues.

There was slightly more activity in the marklet late to-day and prices were advanced to the highest level. The decline in the money rate was the motive, but the dmand was soon satisfid. The closing was dull and firm below the best at net gains—approaching or exceeding a point in many cases.

WORK OF MISSIONS

ANNUAL REPORTS PRESENTED TO THE AMERICAN BOARD.

MAY NOW RE-ENTER PONAPE.

Gospel Is Now Preached to Over 100,000,000 Heathen in Foreign Lands by 529 Devoted Exponents.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 4.—The annual survey of the work of the Board of American Commissioners for Foreign Missions was to-day presented by the foreign secretaries, the Rev. Dr. Judson Smith and the Rev. Dr. James L. Barton. Secretary Barton read the report of the European Turkey and the Eastern Turkey missions; Marathi, Madura and Ceylon missions in India; Japan, Austria, Spain and Mexico. The report showed that every post brought appeals for larger liberty and a more aggressive policy in the work of evangelization.

Among other things, Dr. Barton said:

"Since the war the missionaries in Spain have traveled freely and have carried on their work as before without the slightest word or look upon the part of any one that any ill will was entertained, while in some places it had been made most evident that the people were especially eager to greet and honor Americans."

Secretary Smith's department was surveyed by himself, in substance as follows:

"The missions included are eleven in number, two in Asia Minor, the Western Turkey and the Central Turkey missions; three in Africa, the Zulu, the West Central Africa and the East Central Africa missions, two in the Pacific Islands, the Micronesian missions and the work of the board in the Hawaiian Islands, and four in China, the Shasni, the North China, the Foo Chow and the South China mission.

"The event of the year in Micronesia is the ending of the Spanish occupation of Ponape and the transfer of the Carolines to the German Empire. This undoes, so far as that can be, the events of 1887 and 1890, which banished the missionaries from Ponape, and opens the way to the immediate and energetic reoccupation of this island as a station of the board.

"In 20 missions distributed among the great continents and nations and islands as to encircle the globe, and offering the gospel to more than 100,000,000 souls, a force of 529 missionaries, assisted by 3155 native laborers in 1147 strategic points, preach the Gospel in 26 different languages; 492 organized churches have a present membership of 49,782, of whom 5,047 have been received on confession this year, and 1021 Sunday-schools gather 65,903 pupils every Lord's day; 133 colleges and high schools train 9088 picked youth of both sexes, and 1137 common schools provide instruction for 43,920 pupils, while mission presses send out their millions of pages to instruct the Christian communities and hospitals and dispensaries minister relief to 120,000 patients, to every one of whom the Gospel message is given."

NEGROES IN THE SOUTH.

Petition to the President to Suppress Lynching of Colored Men.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—President McKinley's attitude toward the negro in the South was discussed by the Colored National League in the Charles Street Church last night. The matter came up in the form of an open letter from the league to President McKinley, protesting against his executive inactivity in relation to lawlessness in the South. The letter was read by Archibald H. Grinkio, formerly United States Consul-General in Santo Domingo under President Cleveland. In the general discussion which followed its reading the only dissenting voice was that of Isaac B. Allen of Boston, who opposed the protest on the general ground that it was simply an attack on the present Administration, and, therefore, contrary to the principles of the league, which is not a political but a racial organization. Attention was called to the fact that several petitions are being circulated throughout the country, which originated in Boston, one a protest against race discrimination by the restaurant and hotel keepers in Washington. Reference was also made to a petition, now receiving signatures here, bringing before Congress the prevalence in the Southern States of lynching of negroes, protesting that such overthrowing of the law rendered human life frightfully cheap. The petition goes on to pray that the act of lynching be made a crime against the United States, that the President of the United States be empowered to intervene with the armed forces of the Nation to prevent the commission of the atrocious crime, and to rescue any persons from the hands of such mobs in any State of the Union. The petition further suggests the creation of a central detective bureau at Washington, with branches outside, for the purpose of informing the President of all lynching intentions.

The petition will be presented to Congress next December.

WILL FIGHT THE CASE.

Dentists Mean to Contest the Dow Crown and Bridge Patent.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Acting on the recent decision of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, establishing, it is claimed, the validity of the patent issued in 1881 to James E. Low, for crown and bridge dental work, which was assigned to a certain company, the present holders of the patent have placed attachments on the offices of seven Boston dentists. This patent has been the cause of an immense amount of litigation, and it is said that nearly every dentist in the country had used the crown and bridge-work.

After the New York decision a circular was sent to dentists, requesting that they pay $25 a year for every year during which they have used the wark. Some of them, it is said, have agreed to this, but most of them are determined to avoid payment if possible, and they have organized to fight the caso. They say that the matter will be taken to the United States Court of Appeals and to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

CARNIVAL AT AN END

TEXAS DEMOCRATS CLOSE FESTIVITIES WITH A DINNER.

THOUSANDS ARE TURNED AWAY.

National Committee Will Secure $100,000 for the Next Campaign as a Result of the Meeting.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 4.—Twelve hundred persons were seated at the dollar dinner closing the Texas Democratic carnival last night. Five thousand persons paid 50 cents each for standing room in the hall and twice as many were turned away. Twenty orators spoke at the dinner. The programme was as follows:

Toasts and Responses—Hon. R. E. Burke, toastmaster, Dallas.

Invocation—The Rev. Charles Manton, Paris, Tex.

Address—W. J. Bryan.

Toasts:

1. "A French Proverb;" response, Hon. J. G. Johnson of Kansas.
2. "The New York Democracy;" response, Hon. O. H. P. Belmont of New York.
3. "Three Commonwealths;" response, Hon. Harry B. Hawes of Missouri.
4. "The Democratic Press;" response, Hon. R. M. Johnston of Texas.
5. "Arkansas;" response, Gov. Dan W. Jones of Arkansas.
6. "Imperial Missouri;" response, Hon. Champ Clark of Missouri.
7. "The Chicago Platform Is Popular in the East;" response, Hon. William Sulzer of New York.
8. "Kentucky Democracy;" response, Hon. James P. Tarvin of Kentucky.
9. "Ways and Means;" response, Hon. William J. Stone of Missouri.

The Democratic National Committee receives $20,000 from the Fair Association, according to agreement by reason of holding the carnival on its grounds. It is estimated that as a result of the carnival subscriptions secured from all Texas for the next campaign will aggregate $100,000.

Ex-Gov. Stone of Missouri has been, after Bryan, the most conspicuous figure at the gathering. Dallas newspapers to-day talk of nominating him for the Presidency in 1904.

The Jefferson Club of St. Louis will reach home at 7 oclock Thursday morning.

Beside Mr. Bryan, no orator at the dinner received the applause that was accorded O. H. P. Belmont of New York and Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis. Mr. Hawes, replying to the toast of "Missouri, Kentucky and Texas," said in part:

"I thank you for the honor you have accorded the Jefferson Club in inviting us to be present here to-night, and trust that we may have an opportunity to extend to you the same courteous and hospitable reception in Missouri that you have given us here.

"St. Louis will give a celebration which will meet with the hearty good will and cooperation of the whole Southwest. The great World's Fair in 1903 to celebrate the Louisiana Purchase is in reality the celebration of a great Democratic victory, as it was through the shrewdness, the foresight and keen political judgment of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of our party, that it was made possible to add this vast domain to our public possessions. Every Democrat, every Texan, Missourian or Kentuckian who does not give us his hearty co-operation and support in this grand project is untrue to the memory of our chief and is lacking in patriotism.

"We believe that Bryan will be the President of the United States while this great Fair is in session, and I here pledge the untiring efforts of the Jefferson Club of St. Louis to redeem that great city from the corrupt and unscrupulous gang of political tricksters who now disgrace its fair name and render its politics repugnant to the vast Southwest which supports it.

"Unless all signs fail the National Democratic Convention will hold its meeting for the purpose of nominating Bryan for President in our beautiful Kansas City, the second metropolis of the West.

"We will welcome you at both cities with outstretched arms, brothers of ours. Men of Texas, our latchstrings will be upon the outside and Missouri will show to Texas that, difficult task though it may be, she will not be outdone in hospitality and good-fellowship by even your generous people."

HARMONY NOW ESSENTIAL.

O. H. P. Belmont Pledges the Eastern Democracy to Loyalty.

Mr. Belmont in his speech dwelt chiefly on the necessity for harmony in the party. He said in part:

"I have not come not so much to speak to you as to listen. I have come in responce to the cordial invitation I received, in appreciation of the honor conferred upon me by that invitation and to witness this great rally of Democrats preparing to march to victory. I have come also with the pleasant task of bringing the greetings of the Democracy of the Empire State and to tell you that we are waiting to march as a unit to victory with you in 1900. All factions are coming together. All wounds are healing and all scars are disappearing.

"Gentlemen, the question that the people of this great republic have come face to face with have caused every man who ever had the slightest Democratic sentiment in his makeup to register his determination to elect a Democratic President and restore the Democratic party to power.

"Time is pressing, and I must hurry on. We gather in the name of Democracy on the eve of a tremendous political campaign with the convention still months away, but our standard bearer is practically settled upon by the people. The nomination will be a mere formality. The name of Bryan, Democracy's next candidate, and the country's next president, is heard on every lip. On the subject of the ticket, therefore, I need not pause.

"As to issues, I will say but little. Not that I feel lightly about them. Like you, I feel that the very tenure of American institutions is at stake. Our war in 1900 will be as much a war for liberty and independence as was that of our forefathers in 1776. No; I do not slight the issues in my talk to-day, because they are insignificant or not constant in my mind. They were never of more moment. Imperialism, monopoly, militarism, finance, income tax, all clamor for consideration. You have already heard and will again hear of them all. While I may fail to more than touch upon them, their sure elaboration is in safer, better hands than mine.

"There is one topic, however, on which I may briefly expand. It is Democratic harmony and party union. It must be invoked. There must come an unbroken party front to build up victory and win triumph from the battle of 1900. The man who raises his voice to disturb it will be guilty of a great crime.

"And now, in the name of harmony, let me speak one word concerning the Democracy of New York; the Democracy from which I come to you and which I strain no truth when I say I fairly represent. The New York Democracy will be solidly with you in the coming battle. It will stand by and stay with you to the glorious last. I might say the same of the whole region east of the Alleghenies. Papers and politicians, mugwumps, Republicans and traitors wearing the mask of Democracy, all moved by the power of money and greed, will ever and anon tell you of Democratic disaffection in the East. Such are the lies and wiles of the enemies. They are paid for by Republican money. Their inspiration is Hanna. Their purpose is the disorganization of Democracy and to set the South and West against the East.

"I am here to-day to refute these stories. I have come 2500 miles to brand these Hanna-suggested falsehoods. The New York Democracy, the whole Eastern Democracy, has never in its history come closer to the general party heart than it has to-day. Name Bryan, make your platform what you will and in the East, not one in a hundred of all who ever wore the party badge will be missing from Democracy's muster in November, 1900.

"More than that; there will be with them thousands upon thousands of others, who being Americans and honest men, long before they were Republicans, will leave that party of imperialism, foul with plunder, rotten with misrule and side by side with the followers of Jefferson will strike the blow for Bryan and the nation's safety.

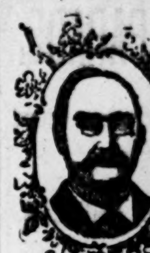

"Look at what we have done in New York. In 1896 we lost the State by 246,000 plurality. The New York Democracy, like the party ship in many other States, went down, scuttled by Clevelandism.

"It is not my purpose to extensively speak of that lone fisherman who sits at Princeton. Yet I tell you in candor he was the blight. It was he who prepared Democracy for defeat in 1896, and who buried it in New York under a landslide of which history never knew the parallel.

"But the eclipse of Cleveland did not stay. It has all but passed. Last fall by trick and money and by vigorous beating of the San Juan drum the Republicans elected Roosevelt with a scant 16,000 plurality. Quite a difference between 246,000 of two short years ago and 16,000. And the Hanna party exhausted its efforts to do that.

"You of the South and West may not only look for party harmony in New York. You may expect to see Bryan sweep the State next year by 50,000. It is no longer the "enemy's country," but the country and home of your friends. The party has gone back to the teachings and examples of such men as Horatio Seymour and Samuel Tilden and August Belmont, and every Democrat worthy to guard the name and memories of those mighty leaders of a mighty past is around the party standards. The per cent of Democracy ill-named, disgruntled and deserting their places have been filled 100-fold by new recruits. They are but disease of party at least, and Democracy is improved in health and strength by their elimination.

"As I close, I say to you, Democrats of Texas, whatever else you may doubt, be sure of the Eastern Democracy; be sure and certain of New York. It is loyal to the general party; loyal to you, as it is loyal to itself. If New York's Democracy were in control of the party the convention work next year would be simplicity itself. It would make Bryan the candidate; Bryan the issue and Bryan the battle cry. As the open sesame that shall unbar the gates to party victory in November, 1900, speaking for the New York Democracy and in the name of New York, I present to you the sentiment: "Bryan and Harmony."

I here mention a few of the million of testimonials that have come to my office unsolicited for which I ask your careful investigation.

In the year 1896 my attention was called to the great and deserving merits of Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound, and from the first dose I took I began to improve. My system was run down and I had Catarrh, Constipation, Neuralgia and Female Troubles. In 60 days I was restored, and I feel that I owe my present robust condition to Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound, in praise of which too much cannot be said.—Margaret Bennett, Cove, O.

Witnessing remarkable cures of Stomach, Liver, Scrofula and Catarrh Troubles by the Vegetable Compound I took treatment.—C. McNaught, Goodfield, Ills.

Four months treatment of Vegetable Compound cured me of Rheumatism, Catarrh, Stomach Troubles and Female Weakness of 8 years standing.—Ida Gorman, 128 Ninth St., Cincinnati, O.

During the Civil War I contracted Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Troubles and weak back, and was cured by the Vegetable Compound. I have been constantly traveling in Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee in the interest of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound was constantly praised for chronic affections.—Rev. N. C. Burkhardt, Jonesville, Va.

For 24 years I have been a constant sufferer of Stomach Trouble, Kidney and Liver Disease. My life was a burden to me. Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound cured me in three months.—Dr. J. W. Wilde, Williamsburg, Ky.

Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound is a sovereign remedy for Rheumatism, Headache, Colds, Erysipelas, Scrofula and Constipation. I use it myself and also in my family.—Rev. W. Bagsby, Hammersville, O.

For 15 years I had Fits. I experimented with Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound and to my great surprise was cured. I have not had a symptom after the sixth day I began to use it. The Vegetable Compound is the only medicine that has given me perfect satisfaction.—Mrs. J. D. Elder, Millstown, Ala.

Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound cured me of Catarrh, Stomach Troubles, Erysipelas and ...bago. I had lost all hope of being cured.—C. N. Hess, North Star, ...

My knowledge of Dr. Burkhart extends over a period of 8 years, during which time I have used his medicine. Whatever may be claimed for Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound I know it has no equal. To the numerous testimonials of Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound, I wish to add mine.—Dr. H. H. Ball, Norwood, Mo.

While in London, England, I contracted a severe cold, something like LaGrippe. It effected my hearing and entire system for 18 months. A six months' treatment of the Vegetable Compound cured me.—R. S. Jackson, Grand Hotel, Boston, Mass.

In my extensive experience I have had the opportunity to put Dr. Burkharts Vegetable Compound to frequent and thorough test, and I can truthfully say that it never failed to perform its work. It will ever be the restorer of health and the comforter of suffering mankind.—Dr. S. K. Stevens, Cleves, O.

For 18 years I have suffered and deaths from Kidney and Troubles and Catarrh. My ... was all run down. I secured ... months' treatment of the Vegetable Compound and was cured.—D. ... Claxton, Bethlehem, Ky.

I suffered with Indigestion and Palpitation of the Heart; the Vegetable Compound made me a sound man. I can truly say that this wonderful medicine has done more for me than all other remedies with which I have become acquainted.—Charles Hardy, Frankfort, Ind.

I served in the civil war 4 years. I contracted Malaria, Kidney and Stomach Troubles and my system had been a total wreck for 17 years. I used Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound and improved from the first dose.—J. P. Watton, 454 Washington St., Indianapolis, Ind.

I wish to say a few words to the public in regard to the excellence of Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound. My experience teaches me that this wonderful remedy is a positive cure for Dyspepsia, Kidney and Bladder Troubles.—A. A. Hughes, Sullivan, Ind.

I have always done for patients I considered my duty and I cannot refrain from recommending Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound. I am prescribing it to my patients and using it in my family.—Dr. A. Vandvent, 16 E. Seventh St., Covington, Kentucky.

For 8 years I suffered intense agony from Catarrh, Nervous Troubles and a severe attack of LaGrippe, which left my system in a shattered condition. A six months' treatment of Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound has entirely restored me to perfect health.—Dr. I. S. Getinger, P.H.D., 141 Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound cured me of serious Catarrh, Throat Trouble and Headache, after suffering five years. Three months' treatment made me a sound woman. I can safely recommend Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound to those who have ailments which this medicine is guaranteed to cure.—Eva Chapsaw, Wheeling, W. Va.

Those who are not in possession of the small sum sufficient to obtain a treatment, I will mail a ten days' trial treatment free. Address Dr. W. S. Burkhart, 1-1 E. 7th St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

STILL DRY IN ARKANSAS.

Fall Plowing Cannot Be Begun in Most Sections.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 4.—The Arkansas climate and crop bulletin for the week ending Oct. 2 says no rain of any consequence was reported from any section of the State during the past week. The ground is too dry for fall plowing in most sections, in others some wheat has been sown and is beginning to sprout. The weather was favorable for picking cotton, and the work progressed very rapidly. It is being ginned and sold as fast as it is gathered. The yield will average about one-half crop. Late corn and second crop potatoes almost a complete failure. Light frost was general on the 27th, 29th and 30th, but it did no damage to vegetation, except in the northwest section, where it injured the sweet potato vines.

NO RAIN YET IN TEXAS.

All Operations of Farming Except Gathering of Crops Has Ceased.

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 4.—To-day the Texas section of the United States Weather Bureau issued its weekly weather and crop bulletin for the week ending Oct. 2. It reports crop conditions throughout Texas as follows:

"The drouth continues with increased severity. No rain fell during the week and dry northerly winds prevailed. All farming operations except gathering crops has ceased, ground too dry for cultivation. The weather has been exceptionally favorable for cotton picking, in fact the entire season has been an exception in this respect. Picking is nearing completion in many localities and the greater portion of the crop is already saved. There will be no top crop. The bulk of the corn crop has been gathered and cribbed in good condition. The crop as a whole is below the average. The weather has been favorable for the ripening of the sugar cane crop, which ranges from fair to good. This crop suffered serious injury from overflows along the Brazos. ... harvesting has made good progress. ... dence rice has been cut for hay. ... farming in the coast country is seriously retarded for want of rain."

The Interview.

Eminent Statesman: Put these memoranda into the form of an interview, and send it to all the papers. If it is well received I will interview myself again, and say I am glad to see the public agrees with me.

Private Secretary: But suppose it is not well received?

Eminent Statesman: Then I will say no reporter called on me, and that I haven't seen a reporter in six months.

MISHAPS WHICH PEOPLED THE CITY HOSPITAL.

SCALP WOUNDS AND BRUISES.

Irritable Persons Who Tried to Oppose the Crowd and Patient Persons Who Were Imposed Upon.

The aftermath of the Veiled Prophet's pageant was visible at the City Hospital Wednesday morning.

The anatomy of several persons was displaced, while others fell victims to excessive enthusiasm.

About midnight the door leading to the hospital reception room opened and a young man staggered across the floor.

"Joe Carr again," said the doctor. "Send him down to No. 1."

The patient was picked up at Tenth and Pine streets. Carr was feeling better Wednesday. He said the diamond engagement ring supposed to have been stolen from him a few days ago, was recovered.

"I felt so good at getting it back," he added, "that I went out and celebrated. Yes, I saw the parade, and the circus float made me feel like a boy again."

Harry Gelaht, aged 13, sat on a cot looking like Little Bo Peep. He has a scalp wound and two broken teeth.

"It just happened this way," he said. "I and my cousin were on Twelfth street and Washington avenue watching the show go by, when up came a gay bunch of kids and crecked me over the head with a horn.

"Says I, that don't go, and then the gang jumps us again. What made me swelled was they were niggers. Whew, but my head aches!

"Say B.," called out Henry as the nurse passed," do you know if Fred is here?"

Harry's home is at Fifteenth and Montgomery streets.

Next to young Gelaht is Willie Cravens, 14 years old.

"I'll get even with 'em yet," he kept muttering. "Yes, I'm going to smash that cradle-robber's lip if I have to get pinched for it."

Then he burst into tears and between boo-hoos said: "I missed the floats on account of him."

Willie doesn't know the name of his assailant, but he declares he can identify him.

If the police will call at the hospital he will furnish them a tip as to where he may be found.

The boy's injuries are not serious. He has a black eye and his nose appears as though the family kitten had been playing with it.

Fannie Milehan, 53 years old, of 3417 Olive street, was crossing the street at Channing avenue and Olive street when a cable car came along. The crowd jostled her and she fell over the fender.

She was taken to the hospital. Dr. Scharff pronounced her injuries slight.

William Patterson was viewing the parade at Broadway and Olive street when he accidentally stepped on the wrong man's corns. The stranger referred to Mr. Patterson's apologies as "hot air" and struck Mr. Patterson twice in the jaw.

The jaw is fractured and will hold the victim incommunicado at the hospital for several days. The man who was the cause of it all has not been apprehended.

Patterson's only recollection of him is that he wore a mustache and side cuts and a bunch of whiskers beneath his chin.

John McElroy has a contusion on his head and he doesn't know, Dr. Babler says, where he got it. He was sleeping peacefully Wednesday morning—after the ball. Mr. McElroy's regular resting apartments are at 3813 Cote Brilliante avenue.

"Louis Karay, aged 38; address unknown; incised wound of the head." This is the inscription on the blotter in Division 15.

Some unsympathetic person pushed Karay off the sidewalk when the "Sing-a-Song-of-Six-Pence float came along, and he fell down. Does any one know the stranger's place of abode?

John Rudl is a farmer, who, since the hats ornamented with a feather came into vogue, has made a fortune out of geese. Part of his prosperity he decided to part from in St. Louis. He succeeded.

Now he is at the hospital. He awoke Wednesday morning with a far-away look in his eyes and asked: "Where am I at?"

John will not be in shape to return to the farm for several days.

Eddie O'Brien went to a dancing carnival Tuesday night at the Masonic Hall. It was a lively affair and young O'Brien was the center figure in the cotillon.

He got tired just as the sun rose and was transferred to the hospital.

THE SOUTH BROADWAY PARADE

Merchants' Association Will Give a Moving Spectacle on Thursday Evening.

The fifth annual parade of the South Broadway Merchants' Association Thursday night will be one of the most brilliant of the many brilliant features of St. Louis' carnival season. It is promised that the pageant will be bigger and better than either of its brilliant predecessors. The theme is a promising one, embracing as it does the history of America from the discovery of the continent in the far past to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in the near future. There will be 21 floats artistically modeled and colored and lighted with acetylene gas.

The parade will start from Second and Dorcas streets. From that point the line of march will be as follows:

West on Dorcas street to Broadway.
South on Broadway to Pestalozzi street.
West on Pestalozzi street to Thirteenth street.
South on Thirteenth street to Cherokee street.
West on Cherokee street to Lemp avenue.
South on Lemp avenue to Broadway.
North on Broadway to Chouteau avenue.
West on Chouteau avenue to Tenth street.
South on Tenth street to Carroll street.
Disband on Soulard Market lot.

The officers of the parade will be as follows:

Grand marshal—L. F. Hammer, Jr., president of the South Broadway Merchants' Association.

Assistant grand marshals—Ben. Westhus, Louis E. Kaltwasser, Charles H. Thuner, August A. Wachter, Ed L. Wachter, Oscar R. Fries, Jacob Stumpf, Max Posnansky, Joseph A. Goetlet, Adam Gramlich, August Steinmeyer, Joseph V. Feldman, Jacob Albrecht

TO TEST SPECIAL TAX BILLS.

Property Owners Have Appealed to United States Courts.

Property owners on Whittier street from Washington boulevard to Finney avenue are going to test the legality of special tax assessments for street improvements.

Application was made to Judge Adams in the United States Circuit Court for a permanent injunction restraining President McMath and the Board of Public Improvements and the Gilsonite Roofing and Paving Co. from issuing and collecting special tax bills.

The plaintiffs allege that under the Constitution of the United States private property cannot be taken for public services without the consent of the owner.

Judge Adams did not issue the writ, but notified the defendants to be in court Saturday morning.

The property owners interested as plaintiffs are Joseph Wheless, who appears, together with Lee Grant, as attorney for the petitioners; S. Malone Wheless, Thomas H. Wheless, William R. Barnhart, Solomon L. Cohen, William L. Reed and wife, Mary Reed; Halstead Burnet and wife, Mary Burnet; Richard Shinnick and wife, Isabelle Shinnick; Robert R. Grant, John Caughan, Ewing and Octavia Hill, Charles Herboth, Thomas B. Chambers, Joseph M. Crotty, Andrew Morello, William Morris and Margaret Morris, his wife.

THE KIRKWOOD POSTMISTRESS

Miss H. B. Purcell Temporarily Appointed to Succeed Heinemann, Who Has Disappeared.

Miss H. B. Purcell has been placed in charge of the Postoffice at Kirkwood, pending the appointment of a permanent Postmaster to succeed Frederick Heinemann, who has disappeared.

The Government charges that Heinemann is nearly $2000 short in his accounts. His family is now living in St. Louis.

Marshal Bohle is diligently searching for the missing man. He says his arrest is only a matter of a short time.

A meeting of Heinemann's bondsmen was held Wednesday at Kirkwood. Theodore Heege was appointed to take up the case in their behalf. The amount for which they went Heinemann's surety amply covers the alleged shortage.

Dead Celestials.—Wey Sing and Him Pang, Chinese, died at the City Hospital of consumption Tuesday. Both were well known residents of Hop Alley and they will be accorded all the honors of a Celestial funeral.

Run Over.—Nellie McCormack, aged 3 years, was run over and slightly injured by a buggy, driven by William Owens, colored, in front of its home at 1230 Spruce street. The child was playing in the street.

Arms Gone Astray.—Guns shipped to the First Regiment from Jefferson City last Friday have failed to arrive in St. Louis, and Col. Sinclair, to whom they were addressed, believes they have been carried out of the State by mistake.

Officer Stricken.—James Kinney of the Fourth District, one of the oldest patrolmen on the force, was stricken with epilepsy at Ninth and Olive streets Tuesday night. He was taken to his home at 2728 Howard street, where he soon revived.

South Side Square.—Mayor Ziegenhein has appointed J. G. Dedoyard keeper of South St. Louis Square. He at first hesitated up the appointment, but is said to have finally made it at the earnest request of Park Commissioner Ridgely and Henry Alt.

Sued the City.—George N. Dyke, formerly inspector of excavations, has sued the city for $476.50 which he claims is due him on his salary. He says that under the Wittenberg law he was entitled to $75 a month, whereas he was paid only 30 cents an hour for the time he was actually employed, his salary varying from $30 to $32 a month.

Killed by the Cars.—Charles Ferrier, a negro postal clerk, was killed by a train at the western approach to the Merchants' Bridge Tuesday night. While attempting to alight from the mail car he fell and rolled under the wheels. He died before he reached the dispensary. He was 28 years old and lived at 2813 Sheridan avenue.

Missing Persons.—The police are looking for a number of persons who have disappeared from their homes. Jennie Hance of 2834 Chouteau avenue, has been missing since Saturday. She was employed by a family at 3626 Botanical avenue. Willie Otterson, 14 years old, of 1516 South Third street and John Johnson of 212 North Fifth street, East St. Louis, are also reported missing.

Willing to Wait.—St. Louis County society is wondering why the nuptials of Dr. Roy Moore and Miss Ella Rowe of Sutter did not occur last Monday, according to programme. The explanation made by the young couple is that Mrs. Moore objected to the doctor marrying at this time and persuaded the lovers to consent to an indefinite postponement of the wedding. Both the prospective groom and his sweetheart say they are willing to wait.

Married in Louisville.—As stated in the late editions of Tuesday's Post-Dispatch Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Hay have returned from Louisville, Ky., where they were married without the knowledge of their families. The lady was Miss Katherine Boland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Boland of 21 North Boyle avenue. The couple met at Webster Groves and went to Louisville. Mr. Hay is cashier in the office of the Air Line in East St. Louis.

OLD ORCHARD COUPLE WED.

Arnold Plack and Miss Mimi Norcom Married in the City.

Arnold Plack and Miss Mimi Norcom, both of Old Orchard, were married in the office of Recorder of Deeds William H. Hahn in the Courthouse Tuesday night. But for the accommodating mood in which they found Mr. Hahn, they would have been compelled to wait until Wednesday to get a license.

They came to the city in the afternoon for the necessary papers, but loitered on the way so long that they found the Recorder's office closed when they applied at the Courthouse. They hunted up Mr. Hahn, who considerately agreed to go to the office with them. The license was issued and the ceremony performed.

The bride, said they came to St. Louis to escape any entanglements that might follow at home on account of religious differences, she being a Prostestant and he a Catholic. They had applied for a dispensation, she said, but it had been refused.

The marriage was acceptable to the relatives of both parties, she claimed, but some of them objected to ignoring religious discipline.

Miss Norcom is a daughter of H. T. Norcom, a retired business man of Old Orchard, and Mr. Plack is a real estate dealer.
